

Contents

	CONTRIBUTORS	vii
1	Graham Roberts The Historian and Television – a methodological survey	1
2	David E. Morrison The historical development of Empirical Social Research: The institutionalisation of knowledge and its relationship to the media industry, and benefits to history	9
3	Pierre Sorlin Historians at the Crossroads: Cinema, Television and after?	25
4	Luisa Cicognetti Historians and Television Archives	33
5	André Lange The History of Television through the Internet: A few notes on the project www.histv.net	39
6	Adrian Wood The Colour of War: A poacher among the gamekeepers?	45
7	Gerda Jansen Hendricks How to present riots that have not been filmed	55
8	Ian Bremner History without Archives: Simon Schama's A History of Britain	63
9	Sheri Chinen Beisen Global narrative and exile culture in Hawaii Five-0	77
10	Nicholas J. Cull Bigger on the inside...: Dr Who as British cultural history	95
11	Stephen Badsey Blackadder Goes Forth and the 'Two western fronts' debate	113
12	James Chapman The World at War : Television, Documentary, History	127

13	Christine Whittaker How the BBC pictured itself	145
14	Isabel Veyrat-Masson French television looks at the past	157
15	Valeria Camporesi Dillinger is back. Film history and social perceptions of television	161
16	Philip M. Taylor Television and the future historian	171