

Contents

Preface	xv
Part One	1
1 What is accounting? And why study it anyway?	3
1.1 Introduction	3
1.1.1 Background	3
1.1.2 Design of the chapter	6
1.1.3 A brief history of accounting and its conventions	7
1.2 What is accounting?	8
1.2.1 A definition of accounting	8
1.2.2 The characteristics of accounting	9
1.2.3 Identifying the accounting transactions	12
1.3 Accounting and financial accounting	13
1.3.1 Financial accounting	13
1.3.2 The structure of financial accounting	14
1.3.3 Management accounting and financial management	16
1.4 Studying to be a professional?	17
1.4.1 Is accounting a profession - and so what?	17
1.4.2 What is education - and so what?	18
1.4.3 Learning accounting? Or understanding accounting?	19
Summary	21
Key terms and concepts	22
Further reading	22
2 Cash, cashbooks and units of account	24
2.1 Introduction	24
2.1.1 Chapter design and links to other chapters	24
2.1.2 The nature of cash	25
2.2 The case of Mr Brain – a student	26
2.2.1 A simple cashbook	26

2.2.2	The columnar cashbook	29
2.2.3	Distinguishing between cash-in-hand and bank transactions	31
2.2.4	The petty cashbook	33
2.3	Analysis of Mr Brain's cashbook	34
2.3.1	Some developments from the cashbook	34
2.3.2	Mr Brain and the characteristics of accounting	36
2.3.3	Currencies and units of account	37
2.4	Some lessons from Mr Brain	38
2.4.1	Why do entities supply information?	39
2.4.2	Why do people request information?	39
2.4.3	What sort of information?	40
2.4.4	Why do accountants supply information?	40
	Summary	41
	Key terms and concepts	42
	Further reading	43
3	Organizations, Organizational Subsystems and the Flows of Double-entry Bookkeeping	44
3.1	Introduction	44
3.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	44
3.1.2	What is an organization?	46
3.2	Types of organization	46
3.3	Characteristics of organizational types	48
3.3.1	Commercial organizations	49
3.3.2	Non-commercial organizations	50
3.4	Organizations, systems and accounting	51
3.4.1	An organization as a system	51
3.4.2	An organization and its major systems	52
3.4.3	The organizational subsystems	54
3.4.4	The organizational subsystems and accounting record keeping	55
3.4.5	Debits, credits and double-entry	57
3.5	Mr Brain and this systems view	58
3.5.1	Brain's substantial environment and organizational system	59
3.5.2	Brain's organizational subsystems and double-entry bookkeeping	60
	Summary	62
	Key terms and concepts	64
	Further reading	65
	Part Two	67
4	Organizational flows, a categorization of basic transactions, accounting records and double-entry bookkeeping	69
4.1	Introduction	69
4.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	69
4.1.2	Reinforcing the organizational flows	71
4.1.3	A model for all the basic bookkeeping system's organizational flows	77

4.2 Eight types of accounting transactions	79
4.2.1 Identifying the transactions	79
4.2.2 The bookkeeping for the eight basic transactions	80
4.2.3 Looking back at the eight transactions	85
4.3 Some further points about commercial and non-commercial organizations	87
Summary	90
Key terms and concepts	90
Further reading	91
5 Putting the eight basic transactions to work, producing the accounting records and an initial trial balance	92
5.1 Introduction	92
5.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	92
5.1.2 Not losing the wood for too many trees?	93
5.2 A detailed worked example: Bird Industries	94
5.2.1 Understanding the transactions	94
5.2.2 Producing the T-accounts for Bird Industries	103
5.2.3 Double-entry and balancing off the T-accounts for Bird Industries	107
5.3 The initial trial balance	112
5.3.1 Putting the initial trial balance together	112
5.3.2 Some arithmetic hints and tips	113
5.3.3 Interpreting and developing the trial balance	114
Summary	115
Key terms and concepts	116
Further reading	117
Appendix 5A: Single-entry matrix bookkeeping and the spreadsheet	117
6 The accounting information system: organizing and controlling the accounting records	120
6.1 Introduction	120
6.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	120
6.1.2 An overview of the accounting information system and bookkeeping	122
6.2 Capturing the accounting data	125
6.3 Organizing the accounting records	127
6.3.1 The day books and journals	127
6.3.2 The chart or index of accounts	130
6.3.3 The ledgers	132
6.3.4 The general journal	132
6.4 Controlling the accounting records	134
6.4.1 Why control accounting data and the system of internal control	134
6.4.2 Internal and external audit	136
6.4.3 Bank reconciliations	136
Summary	140
Key terms and concepts	141
Further reading	141

7	The trial balance and categorization: the accounting conventions, assets, liabilities, revenues, expenses, provisions and reserves	143
7.1	Introduction	143
7.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	143
7.1.2	Introducing the basic financial statements	144
7.2	Categorizing the trial balance entries	147
7.2.1	What categories do we use?	147
7.2.2	The accounting equations	148
7.2.3	Working with the accounting equations	149
7.2.4	A simple extended trial balance	152
7.3	The accounting conventions	153
7.3.1	Money measurement	154
7.3.2	Entity convention	154
7.3.3	Going concern convention	154
7.3.4	Accrual and matching convention	155
7.3.5	Prudence or conservatism convention	156
7.3.6	Consistency convention	158
7.3.7	Periodicity convention	159
7.4	The accounting conventions and the basic categories	160
7.4.1	What are revenues?	160
7.4.2	What are expenses?	161
7.4.3	What are assets?	161
7.4.4	What is a liability or claim?	163
7.4.5	What is a provision?	164
7.5	So what are these end-of-period adjustments?	166
	Summary	167
	Key terms and concepts	168
	Further reading	169
 Part Three		 171
8	Accruals, prepayments and general provisions and an introduction to the production and format of the profit and loss account and balance sheet	173
8.1	Introduction	174
8.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	174
8.2	What are accruals, prepayments and general provisions?	175
8.2.1	Accruals	175
8.2.2	Prepayments	176
8.2.3	General provisions	178
8.3	A worked example with accruals, prepayments and provisions	180
8.3.1	A word before we start	180
8.3.2	Yothu Yindi Ltd: the information	181
8.3.3	Yothu Yindi Ltd: the end-of-period adjustments	183
8.3.4	Yothu Yindi Ltd: the financial statements	185
8.4	Laying out the profit and loss account and balance sheet	187
8.4.1	A simple profit and loss account	188

8.4.2 A simple balance sheet	190
Summary	190
Key terms and concepts	191
Further reading	191
Appendix 8.A The basic T-accounts for Yothu Yindi Ltd 19X1	193
Appendix 8.B Accruals, prepayments and provisions understood as inflows and outflows	196
Appendix 8.C End-of-period adjustments for Yothu Yindi Ltd without using the extended trial balance – using only T-accounts	201
Appendix 8.D Doing the Yothu Yindi bookkeeping through an extended trial balance without using T-accounts (incomplete records)	205
9 Depreciation of fixed assets and profits and losses on disposal	210
9.1 Introduction	210
9.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	210
9.1.2 What is depreciation?	211
9.2 Calculating depreciation	212
9.2.1 The raw materials for a depreciation calculation	212
9.2.2 Methods of calculating depreciation	213
9.3 The bookkeeping for depreciation	219
9.3.1 The basic elements	219
9.3.2. Bookkeeping through an extended trial balance	219
9.3.3 Bookkeeping through the T-accounts	221
9.3.4 Depreciation in the profit and loss account and balance sheet	221
9.4 Yothu Yindi Ltd: fixed assets and depreciation	225
9.5 The disposal of fixed assets	232
9.6 A worked example on depreciation and disposals of fixed assets	234
9.7 Issues arising with depreciation	235
9.7.1 Are fixed assets always depreciated?	235
9.7.2 Depreciation for replacement	236
9.7.3 Some implications arising from depreciation	236
9.7.4 Depreciation, taxation and non-Anglo-Americans	237
Summary	237
Key terms and concepts	238
Further reading	238
Appendix 9.A The new financial statements for Yothu Yindi Ltd 19X1 (including depreciation of fixed assets)	239
Appendix 9.B The fixed assets T-accounts for Yothu Yindi Ltd 19X2	241
10 Stock allocation, valuation and the cost of sales	246
10.1 Introduction	246
10.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	246
10.1.2 What is stock/inventory?	247
10.1.3 A simple example introducing cost of sales	248
10.1.4 Summarizing the basic relationship between stock and cost of sales	249
10.2 The valuation of stock and inventory – the simple case	251
10.2.1 The stocktake	251

10.2.2	Costing the stock	252
10.2.3	The lower of cost or net realizable value and provisions for slow moving, damaged or obsolete stock	256
10.3	The valuation of stock or inventory: the more complex cases	259
10.3.1	Raw materials, work-in-progress and finished goods	259
10.3.2	The trading and manufacturing accounts	262
10.4	An illustration of stock end-of-period adjustments	266
10.4.1	Gathering the information	266
10.4.2	Opening balances	266
10.4.3	Entering the transactions	270
10.4.4	Double-entry for end-of-period stock	270
10.4.5	The manufacturing account	273
10.4.6	Cost versus net realizable value	276
	Summary	279
	Key terms and concepts	279
	Further reading	280
11	Bad and doubtful debts (and another look at provisions)	282
11.1	Introduction	282
11.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	282
11.1.2	What are bad and doubtful debts?	283
11.2	Accounting for bad and doubtful debts	284
11.2.1	Accounting for bad debts	284
11.2.2	Accounting for doubtful debts	285
11.2.3	Accounting for bad and doubtful debts – together	287
11.3	Provisions revisited and the ‘accounting decisions’	292
11.3.1	The uncertainty of accounting numbers	292
11.3.2	The nature of provisions	293
	Summary	296
	Key terms and concepts	296
	Further reading	296
12	From the trial balance to the financial statements: ownership claims, profit, appropriations and social reality	298
12.1	Introduction	298
12.1.1	Chapter design and links to previous chapters	298
12.1.2	Revisiting trial balance categorization	299
12.1.3	Taxation	301
12.2	Ownership claims	302
12.2.1	Capital injections to the focal organization	302
12.2.2	This year’s earnings (profit or loss) and their allocation	306
12.2.3	Making payments to the owners	309
12.2.4	Earnings from previous years	311
12.3	The published profit and loss account and balance sheet	313
12.4	Starting to think about financial statements	318
12.4.1	How accurate is the profit figure?	318
12.4.2	Financial accounting constructs social reality?	320
12.4.3	Profit and social reality in the non-commercial sector	322

Summary	323
Key terms and concepts	324
Further reading	324
13 Partnerships	327
13.1 Introduction	327
13.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	327
13.1.2 The nature of partnerships	328
13.2 Partnership capital and current accounts	329
13.2.1 Introduction	329
13.2.2 The capital account	330
13.2.3 The current account	331
13.2.4 Introducing the Jeopardy partnership	333
13.2.5 Some lessons from Jeopardy	339
13.3 Further partnership issues	340
13.3.1 Introduction	340
13.3.2 Dissolving a partnership	340
13.3.3 Partnership goodwill	341
13.3.4 The basic elements of the bookkeeping for a leaving or joining partner	342
13.4 Thinking about financial accounting – again	345
Summary	347
Key terms and concepts	347
Further reading	348
Appendix 13.A Full T-accounts and financial statements for the Jeopardy Partnership	349
14 Accounting regulation and company accounts	354
14.1 Introduction	354
14.1.1 Background and links to previous chapters	354
14.1.2 Design of the chapter	357
14.2 An overview of the regulation of financial accounting	357
14.2.1 Introduction	357
14.2.2 The basic institutional framework of accounting regulation	358
14.2.3 The rapidly changing world of accounting regulation	360
14.2.4 The international perspective	360
14.3 Introduction to company law and the format of company accounts	363
14.3.1 Organizational requirements of company law	364
14.3.2 Accounting requirements of company law	364
14.3.3 Profit and loss account, balance sheet and additional information	365
14.3.4 Disclosure as opposed to accounting	366
14.3.5 A brief review of a set of published financial statements	367
14.3.6 Directors and the directors' report	370
14.3.7 The auditor and the company	372
14.4 Pronouncements by the professional accountancy bodies	375
14.4.1 Background to accounting standards	375
14.4.2 The subject coverage of accounting standards	375

14.5 Other regulations and the regulation of non-company organizations	381
Summary	383
Key terms and concepts	384
Further reading	385
Part Four	387
15 Reading the financial statements and Annual Report: Cash flow analysis and interpreting financial numbers	389
15.1 Introduction	389
15.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	389
15.1.2 Users of financial statements	390
15.2 Company liquidity and cash flow	391
15.2.1 Introduction	391
15.2.2 Management and liquidity: a brief word	392
15.2.3 The difference between cash and profit/loss	394
15.3 The cash flow statement	395
15.3.1 Introduction	395
15.3.2 A simple cash flow statement	397
15.3.3 Reconciliation of profit/loss and cash movement	399
15.3.4 Constructing a cash flow statement	405
15.3.5 The usefulness of a cash flow statement	406
15.4 Reading the financial statements	409
15.4.1 Introduction	409
15.4.2 Background and market information	409
15.4.3 Chairman's statement, directors' report and other information	410
15.4.4 An initial overview of the financial statements	410
15.5 Ratio analysis	412
15.5.1 An overview	412
15.5.2 Profitability ratios	413
15.5.3 Activity ratios	420
15.5.4 Liquidity ratios	421
15.5.5 Profitability, activity and liquidity ratios – their interconnection	423
15.5.6 Gearing ratios	423
15.5.7 Stock market ratios	427
15.5.8 A concluding comment	428
Summary	429
Key terms and concepts	430
Further reading	430
16 Accounting for changing prices: An introduction	432
16.1 Introduction to changing prices	432
16.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	432
16.1.2 Background	433
16.1.3 The nature of changing prices	433

16.1.4	The focal organization's income	435
16.2	The effect of changing prices on financial statements: A worked example	436
16.3	Methods of asset valuation (and expense determination)	442
16.4	Concepts of capital maintenance	447
16.4.1	Introduction	447
16.4.2	Historic cost with money capital	449
16.4.3	CPP with general purchasing power capital	449
16.4.4	Replacement cost with differing capital maintenance concepts	449
16.5	Accounting for changing prices and the accounting profession	451
16.6	Some further refinements	452
16.6.1	Adjustment for monetary items	454
16.6.2	Backlog depreciation	455
16.6.3	Realized versus unrealized holding gains	455
16.6.4	The gearing adjustment	456
16.7	A review, summary and some concluding remarks on accounting for changing prices	456
	Key terms and concepts	459
	Further reading	459
17	Expanding the reporting function: social and environmental accounting and reporting	461
17.1	Introduction	461
17.1.1	Background	461
17.1.2	Chapter design and links to other chapters	462
17.2	Expansion of information for company shareholders	463
17.2.1	Introduction	463
17.2.2	Information relating to employees	464
17.2.3	Additional financial and general information	465
17.2.4	Other social and environmental information	465
17.3	The value added statement	466
17.3.1	Background	466
17.3.2	How the VAS is constructed	467
17.3.3	A brief critique of VAS	469
17.4	An assessment of the expansion of information for company shareholders	470
17.5	The provision of information to employees	472
17.5.1	Information for employees	472
17.5.2	Information for collective bargaining	474
17.6	Provision of information to society	475
17.6.1	Government monitoring	476
17.6.2	Voluntary disclosure by organizations	476
17.6.3	Social audits	477
17.6.4	The pros and cons of CSR	477
	Summary and a few possible conclusions	478
	Key terms and concepts	480
	Further reading	480

18 Thinking about accounting: theoretical perspectives on financial accounting and reporting	482
18.1 Introduction	482
18.1.1 Chapter design and links to previous chapters	482
18.1.2 An overview of different approaches	483
18.2 The data oriented approach	488
18.2.1 Traditional income and wealth measures	489
18.2.2 Alternatives to income and wealth measures	489
18.3 Decision usefulness approach	491
18.3.1 Decision makers and decision models	491
18.3.2 Research into the decision makers emphasis	494
18.3.3 Research into the decision models emphasis	495
18.3.4 A concluding comment	497
18.4 Organizational resource approach	497
18.4.1 The supply and demand model	497
18.4.2 The organizational control model	499
18.4.3 A concluding comment	500
18.5 An evaluation of the alternatives	500
18.5.1 Academics, standard setters and producers: their views	501
18.5.2 A unified view?	502
Summary	503
Key terms and concepts	504
Further reading	505
 Part Five	 507
19 Where have we been? Where do we go next?	509
19.1 Looking back over the course	509
19.1.1 Introduction	509
19.1.2 The structure of financial accounting	510
19.1.3 Revising financial accounting	511
19.2 Looking forward	512
19.3 Education and the accounting profession	513
 References	 515
 Index	 520