

CONTENTS

List of Figures	xi
List of Tables	xii
Notes on Contributors	xiii
1. Introduction KEITH DOWDING and DESMOND KING	1
2. The Paradox of Voting and the Theory of Social Evolution ALAN CARLING	20
3. Interpreting Formal Coalition Theory KEITH DOWDING	43
4. The Rational Basis for Belief in the Democratic Myth PATRICK DUNLEAVY and HELEN MARGETTS	60
5. Working for Benefits: Rational Choice and Work- Welfare Programmes DESMOND KING and HUGH WARD	89
6. Party Competition in Interlinked Political Markets: The European Union and its Member States MOSHE MAOR	114
7. Railway Regulation as a Test-bed of Rational Choice IAIN MCLEAN	134
8. Rational Decision in International Crises: A Rationalization MICHAEL NICHOLSON	162

9. The Buck in Your Bank is not a Vote for Free Trade: Financial Intermediation and Trade Preferences in the United States and Germany CHERYL SCHONHARDT-BAILEY and ANDREW BAILEY	179
10. The Internal Balance of Power and Relative Economic Decline HUGH WARD	211
11. Rationality, Revolution, and Reassurance MARK WICKHAM-JONES	249
Bibliography	266
Index	285

LIST OF FIGURES

- 4.1. The continuum between autonomous expressive benefits and default instrumental benefits
- 5.1 Family and community insurance modelled as the Prisoners' Dilemma
- 5.2 Family and community insurance modelled in terms of preference asymmetry
- 5.3 The extensive form of the unemployment game
- 10.1 The relationship between economic growth and executive ideology in the 1970s
- 10.2 The relationship between growth and consensus democracy in the 1970s
- 11.1 Preferences for the potential revolutionary
- 11.2 Conditional co-operation as the basis for revolutionary action
- 11.3 Negative selective incentives facing the potential revolutionary