

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
1 Managing people across Europe: an introductory framework	1
Terry Garrison
Cases in point – EU differences – A matter of economics – Managing people: organizational aspects – Elements of business culture – Appendix: historical overview – References
2 Managing people in the United Kingdom	25
Shaun Tyson
The traditions in personnel management – Developments in human resource management since 1979 – Current trends in human resource management – References
3 Managing people in Germany	40
Karl Blum
Historical background: main features – Present political and economic system: main features – Key features in the current state of industry and commerce and their major effects – The legislative framework for managing people and major features of the systems – Salient features of management practice – References
4 Managing people in France	63
Philippe Trouvé
Religious and family influences on French industrialization – The place of the state – Modernization of industry – The trade unions: a spent force – Changes in the pattern of French industry – Difficulties encountered in adapting to meet international competition – Strengths and weaknesses in the main sectors – The restructuring of socio-economic groups and employment – The legal and institutional framework – The principal features of the French style of management – The priority given to the modernization of technology – An awareness of fashionable trends – HRM to the fore – References

- 5 Managing people in Central Europe 92
Velimir Srca
Introduction – Historical background – Present situation – Introducing modern management – Conclusions – Further reading
- 6 Managing people in Scandinavia 111
Kurt H. Parkum and Flemming Agersnap
Denmark: history and main political and economic features – Norway: history and main political and economic features – Sweden: history and main political and economic features – A comparison among the Scandinavian countries – Conclusions – References – Further reading
- 7 Managing people in Russia 122
Terry Garrison and Anton Artemyev
Introduction – Aspects of the human resource management system – Impact of history – Factors in the development of Russian shopfloor attitudes – The path ahead – Conclusions – References
- 8 Managing people in Spain 140
Angel Diaz and Paddy Miller
Historical background – Present political and economic system: main features – Key features in the current state of industry and commerce and their major effects – Trade balance – Legislative framework for managing people – Salient features of management practice – Human resources strategy
- 9 Managing people in the Netherlands 163
Terry Garrison and Paul Verveen
Introduction – Matters historical – The politics of change – Human resources management: aspects of the system – Developments in Dutch personnel management – References
- Index 174