Contents

The Situation of the Jews in Today's Germany
Micha Brumlik

1. Introduction

"How can one stand to live there as a Jew...": Paradoxes of Jewish Existence in Germany
Y. Michal Bodemann

2. The Formative Years: The Sherit Hapletah and the Contradictions of the New Jewish Existence in Germany

East European and German Jews in Postwar Germany, 1945–50
Michael Brenner

The Identity and Ideology of Jewish Displaced Persons
Cilly Kugelmann

German-Jewish Relations in the Postwar Period: The Ambiguities of Antisemitic and Philosemitic Discourse
Frank Stern

3. Identity Formation in the German Environment

From Nowhere to Israel and Back: The Changing Self-Definition of Periodicals of German-Jewish Youth Since 1960
Martin Löw-Beer

Identity, Exile, and Division: Disjunctures of Culture, Nationality, and Citizenship in German-Jewish Selfhood in East and West Berlin
John Borneman
4. Reordering Memories: Jewish and German Images about the Other

The Cultural Operations of Germans and Jews as Reflected in Recent German Fiction

Jack Zipes

Reconstructions of History: From Jewish Memory to Nationalized Commemoration of Kristallnacht in Germany

Y. Michal Bodemann

5. From Cold-War Europe to the New European Order

Imperialist Agents, Anti-Fascist Monuments, Eastern Refugees, Property Claims: Jews as Incorporations of East German Social Trauma, 1945–94

Robin Ostow

Jews and the Transition to a Post-Yalta Order: Germany, Austria, Eastern Europe, and the United States

Andrei S. Markovits

Germany, the Jews, and Europe: History and Memory and the Recent Upheaval

Dan Diner

A Comment: The End of the Postwar Era and the Reemergence of the Past

Moishe Postone

Contributor’s List

Index