

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Preface	xiii

PART I: METATHEORY: GROUNDING METHOD

1. Introduction: What Is Critical Theory?	3
Why Social Science?	3
Critical Theory as a Human Science	8
The Origins of Critical Theory	13
Contemporary Critical Theory	16
Critical Theory Now	21
Critiques of Critical Theory	26
An Agenda	30
2. Foundations of Metatheory:
Between Subjectivism and Objectivism	35
Approaching Methodology	37
Orienting Definitions	40
Basic Concepts of Metatheory	42
The Subjectivist-Objectivist Polarization in Metatheory	53
Three Approaches to Metatheory and Methodology	56
Conclusion	60
3. Postempiricist Critiques of Positivism and Empiricism	62
Why the Critique of Positivism?	62
Positivist Philosophies of Science	65
Positivism in the Social Sciences	69

12. Critical Social Science and Society:
Theory and Practice	302
Models of Social Science	305
Redefining Counterhegemony and the Public Sphere	313
Intellectuals and Practice: Contexts of Critical Research	315
Conclusion: Beyond Fragmentation?	320
References	322
Index	350
About the Authors	381

Postempiricism and the Rise of Antifoundationalism	72
Postempiricist Alternatives	76
The Critical Realist Theory of Science	77
Conclusion: Rethinking Reason	79

PART II: CRITICAL THEORY AS A RESEARCH PROGRAM

4. Early Critical Theory as a Research Program: A Historical Introduction	85
From Western Marxism to Critical Theory	85
The Hermeneutic-Dialectical Tradition	92
Interdisciplinary Materialism as a Research Program	98
An Emergent Alternative Research Program	106
The Decline of a Research Program: The Dialectic of Enlightenment	108
Conclusion: Beyond the Crisis	110
5. Postempiricist Metatheory and the Human Sciences: Interim Developments	113
The Weberian Challenge	115
Action Theories	116
The (Post)Structuralist Revolution(s)	121
French Social Theory	132
Critical Realism and the Social Sciences	136
Conclusion	138
6. The Metatheory of Critical Theory: Beyond Objectivism and Relativism	141
Rethinking Critical Theory	141
Knowledge Interests: Quasi Transcendentalism	145
Theory of Communicative Action: Reconstructive Sciences	150
Transcending the Subject-Object Split	153
Conclusion	164
7. Contemporary Critical Theory as a Research Program: Giddens and Habermas	169
Weak and Strong Research Programs for Critical Theory	170

Giddens: A Critique of Historical Materialism	174
Habermas: A Reconstruction of Historical Materialism	183
Complementary Critical Research Traditions	190
Conclusion	193

PART III: CRITICAL THEORY AND EMPIRICAL RESEARCH

8. Deconstructing the Conventional Discourse of Methodology: Quantitative Versus Qualitative Methods	199
The Conventional Methods Discourse	201
Critique of the Discourse	207
Disciplinary Interests and Two Research Logics	211
A Taxonomy of Social Research Strategies	215
The Investigative Concerns of Critical Theory	218
Conclusion	222
9. Non-Empirical Methods: Reflexive Procedures	226
Logic as Rhetoric	228
Positivist Research and Non-Empirical Methods	233
Critical Theory and Non-Empirical Methods	235
Is There a Dialectical Method?	240
Conclusion	244
10. Empirical Procedures in Critical Research	248
Explanation and Interpretation in Social Science	248
Intensive Research Designs	250
Narrative and Discourse Analysis	258
Conclusion	266
11. Contexts of Critical Empirical Research	273
State and Economy	281
Cultural Theory	287
Social Psychology	293
Conclusion	299