

Contents^{*}

Abstract	2
1. Introduction	5
2. Collibration in Traditional Arenas	13
2.1 Industrial relations	14
2.2 Industrial democracy	16
2.3 The Markets	17
2.4 The democratic political process	22
3. Collibration in Policy Networks	24
3.1 Formalizing an arena	26
3.2 Operating in a network	30
4. Analysis and Appraisal	32
4.1 Conditions and limits of collibration	32
4.2 Aetiology	34
4.3 Effectiveness	35
4.4 Is collibration a phenomenon of its age?	36
4.5 Does collibration travel well?	38
4.6 Is collibration subject to decay?	39
4.7 Accountability and the audit trail	41
4.8 Conclusion	42
References	44

* I should like to express my profound gratitude to the Max-Planck-Gesellschaft, and to the Directors of the Max-Planck-Institut für Gesellschaftsforschung at Köln, for affording me the opportunity to develop this paper over the five months August 1992 to February 1993. To Professor Renate Mayntz and Professor Fritz Scharpf in particular, and also to Jürgen Feick, Raymund Werle, Roland Czada, Volker Schneider and Marian Döhler, I am greatly indebted for their friendship, their kind advice and their keen comments on earlier drafts. I should also like to thank Professor Christopher Hood and Professor Rod Rhodes for most helpful suggestions.