

Contents

Acknowledgements	11
Introduction	13
Part I Profitably Analyzing the Current European Situation	19
1 Europe: Opportunity or Irrelevance?	21
Local-scale companies	22
Regional-scale companies	27
European-scale companies	29
World-scale companies	32
Conclusions	36
2 Preparing Background Material	39
Shortcuts to European data gathering	39
Sourcing the data on Europe	41
Preparing the data	43
3 Profiting from Country and Company Specialization	51
Country specialization	51
Company specialization	56
4 Building a 'Euro-brand'	63
Criteria for Euro-brand building	65
Conclusions	71
5 Defining Critical Success Factors	73
CSF illustrations	74
Conclusions	78
6 Recognizing Hidden Entry Barriers	79
The nature of the problem	79
Conclusions	87
7 Dealing with Excess Production Capacity	89
How will excess capacity arise?	89
Commission examples	90
General strategy to tackle overcapacity	95

8	Protecting the Home Market	97
	Assessing the need for action	97
	Checklist on protecting the home market	103
9	Profitably Analyzing the Current European Situation: Summary and Conclusions	105
Part II	Developing a Successful European Strategy	107
10	Developing and Setting Realistic European Objectives	109
	‘The European challenge’	109
	Timescales for objectives	110
	Relationship to company objectives	111
	Developing strategies to meet the objectives	111
11	Company Strengths Strategy	115
	Conglomerates in Europe	115
	Company strengths defined	116
	How to evaluate possible strengths	124
12	Customer Strategy: Establishing Customer Requirements	127
	Customer target groups	127
	Customer research in Europe	128
13	Customer Strategy: Identifying the Customer	135
14	Customer Strategy: Differentiating the Product or Service	143
	Real differentiation from product performance	143
	Perceived differentiation through product presentation	150
	Perceived differentiation through value for money	155
	What if product differentiation cannot be produced?	157
15	Customer Strategy: Identifying Technical Development Issues	159
	Establish the need for development	160
	Exploratory discussions within the company	162
	Specific plan	163
16	Customer Strategy: Customer Service and Quality Issues	167
	Strategy areas	167
	Conclusions	172
17	Competitor Strategy: Market Data	173
	Market growth	173

	Market share	178
	Classifying your company using market data	183
	Using market data to develop business strategy options	184
	Conclusions	185
18	Competitor Strategy: Competitive Relative Costs	187
	Cost comparison with the competition	188
	Is the company a low-cost producer	189
	Cost reassessment leading to new competitive strategy	191
	Comparison with competition on learning and experience cost curves	192
	Conclusions	194
19	Competitor Strategy: Sustainable Competitive Advantage	195
	Sources of competitive advantage	196
	Dealing with uncertainty	201
20	Competitor Strategy: Competitor Response to New Entrants	203
	Share objective	203
	New entry signals to existing companies	207
	Conclusions	209
21	Competitor Strategy: Assess Likely Market Changes Over Five Years	211
	Areas of assessment	211
	Conclusions	215
22	Channel Strategy: Assessing Existing Distribution Methods	217
	Channel strategy: an introduction	217
	Assess existing methods Zuerstung des Kundenwertes	218
	Conclusions and checklist	227
23	Channel Strategy: Distributor Relationships	229
	Who are the really important distributors?	230
	What is important to distributors?	230
	Sources of differentiation a company can offer distributors	231
	Price premium	233
	How can a company signal value to the distributor	233
	Changing the product to make it more attractive to the distributor	234

	Changes in national distribution across each country	235
	Target group communications	235
24	Channel Strategy: Securing the Means of Distribution	241
	The European threat and opportunity	241
	The action to be taken	242
	Securing distribution: the options	242
	Conclusions	250
25	Successful European Strategy: The Action to be Taken	251
	Identifying the essentials	251
	Refining the company objectives	253
	Words of caution on four important issues	254
	Defending the home market	256
	Tackling overcapacity arising from barrier removal	261
	Seeking lower costs from economies of scale	264
	Achieving larger sales from the single market	270
	Excellence in one area	282
Part III	Implementing the Strategy in Europe	283
26	Testing the Strategy	285
	Possible sources of opinion	285
	Timing the testing process	286
27	Negotiating the Deal	287
	The negotiating process	287
	Agreement content	293
28	Making Takeovers and Joint Ventures Work	295
	Guidelines for takeovers and joint ventures	295
	Longer-term consequences of joint ventures	301
29	Organization and Control for Europe	305
30	Reducing Risk and Planning for Rewards	313
	Appendix 1: Europe's Top 250 Companies	323
	Appendix 2: The Selection Criteria for the Top 250	353
	Appendix 3: Bibliography	359
	Index	361