Contents

Figures and Tables ix
Preface. Emotion and Advertising: A Timely Union xiii
   Julie A. Edell
Acknowledgments xix

I. THEORETICAL APPROACHES 1

   Conceptual Issues

1. Emotion in Advertising: An Agency Point of View
   Stuart J. Agres 3

2. On Using Classical Conditioning Methods for Researching the Impact of Ad-Evoked Feelings
   Chris T. Allen and Terence A. Shimp 19

3. Individual Responses to Advertising: Mood and Its Effects from an Information Processing Perspective
   Thomas K. Srull 35

4. A Micro Approach to Studying Feeling Responses to Advertising: The Case of Warmth
   David A. Aaker and Douglas M. Stayman 53

5. Transformational Advertising: Current State of the Art
   Christopher P. Puto and Robert W. Hoyer 69
6. Fear Appeals in Advertising: An Emotion Attribution Approach
   Malcolm C. Smith, Kristina A. Frankenberger, and Lynn R. Kahle
   81

General Measurement Issues

7. Facing up to the Challenge of Measuring Emotional Response to Advertising
   Trent H. Punnett and Richard W. Pollay
   105

8. Ad-Specific Emotional Responses to Advertising
   J. Edward Russo and Debra L. Stephens
   113

II. CURRENT RESEARCH ON AD STIMULUS AND VIEWER CHARACTERISTICS
   125

Ads as Emotional Stimuli

   Fairfid M. Caudle
   127

10. Influences on Emotional Response to Commercials of Different Executional Styles
    Cheon-Soung Park and Esther Thorson
    161

11. When Are Feelings Generated? Assessing the Presence and Reliability of Feelings Based on Storyboards and Animatics
    Ronald C. Goodstein, Julie A. Edell, and Marian Chapman Moore
    175

12. Does What We See Influence How We Feel? Felt Emotions Versus Depicted Emotions in Television Commercials
    Patricia A. Stout, Pamela M. Homer, and Scott S. Liu
    195

13. Affect and Attitudes in Advertising: The Impact of Brand Name and Product Category Introductory Position
    Julie A. Edell and Helen H. Anderson
    211
Impact of Emotional Advertising on Consumer Responses

14. Consumer Emotional Reactions to Television Advertising and Their Effects on Message Recall
   Basil G. Englis
   231

15. The Memory Impact of Commercials Varying in Emotional Appeal and Product Involvement
   Thomas J. Page, Jr., Esther Thorson, and Maria Papas Heide
   255

16. A Three-Component Model of Attitude Toward the Ad: Effects of the Zipping and Zapping of Television Commercials
   T. J. Olney, Rajeev Batra, and Morris B. Holbrook
   269

Stimulus-Viewer Interactions

17. Message Effectiveness Can Be Increased by Matching Appeals to Recipients’ Self-Schemas: Laboratory Demonstrations and a National Field Experiment
   Timothy C. Brock, Laura A. Brannon, and Carol Bridgwater
   285

18. The Relationship Between Advertising and Consumers’ Moods: A Synergistic Approach
   Ronald Paul Hill and Debra L. Stephens
   317

Epilogue

19. Consumer Psychology’s Potential Contribution to Social Science
   John C. Maloney
   329

Index
369

About the Editors and Contributors
377