

Contents

| | |
|--|-----|
| Preface and Acknowledgements | ix |
| List of Abbreviations | xii |
| 1. Information, Organization and Management: | |
| Toward the Boundary-less Organization | 1 |
| Introduction | 1 |
| Changes in Competitive Environments and Corporate Structures | 2 |
| New Models for the Organization and Management of Corporations | 7 |
| Structure and Special Features of this Book | 11 |
| 2. Market Dynamics and Competition: | |
| The Fundamental Role of Information | 17 |
| Why Corporations and Markets? | 17 |
| Markets as Processes | 22 |
| Entrepreneurship | 25 |
| Organization Theories | 31 |
| Changes in the Market and Corporate Boundaries through Improvements of Information and Communication Possibilities | 50 |
| Implications for Management | 55 |
| 3. Fundamental Information and Communication Models: | |
| Insights into Communication and Information Behavior | 57 |
| Functions of Information and Communication Models | 57 |
| Communication Models | 58 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| Information Behavior Models | 73 |
| Information Production Models | 86 |
| Implications for the Management of Information and Communication | 92 |
| 4. The Potential of Information Technology in Developing the Market-driven Organization | 97 |
| General Possibilities and Limits of Information and Communication Technology | 99 |
| Foundations of Information and Communication Technology and Information Management | 109 |
| Development Trends of Information and Communication Infrastructures | 114 |
| Information and Communication Systems | 131 |
| Information Deployment | 147 |
| Management Perspectives for Information and Communication Technology Deployment in the Firm | 158 |
| 5. Dissolution of Hierarchies: Modularization of Corporations | 161 |
| Fundamental Principles of Modularization | 161 |
| Driving Forces Behind the Development of the Modular Corporation | 166 |
| Forms of Modularization | 187 |
| The Role of Information and Communication Technologies for Modularization | 202 |
| Management Perspectives for the Modular Corporation | 205 |
| 6. Dissolution of Corporate Boundaries: Symbioses and Networks | 209 |
| The Fundamental Idea Behind Symbiotic Organizational Structures | 209 |
| Driving Forces for the Development of Symbiotic Organizational Forms | 210 |
| Applying Organizational Forms | 220 |
| The Role of Information and Communication Technology | 238 |
| Implications for the Management of Information and Communication | 252 |
| 7. New Forms of Market Coordination: Electronic Markets | 259 |
| Overview of Electronic Markets | 259 |
| Drivers for the Development of Electronic Markets | 275 |
| The Emergence of Electronic Markets and the Role of the Market Maker | 281 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| The Role of Information and Communication Technologies and Channels | 298 |
| Management Perspectives of Borderless and Boundary-less Electronic Commerce | 307 |
| 8. Overcoming the Boundaries of Location: Telecooperation and Virtual Enterprises | 311 |
| The Basic Concept of Organizations with Dispersed Work Locations | 311 |
| Driving Forces Behind the Dissolution of Work Locations | 320 |
| Successful Models of Organizations with Dispersed Work Locations | 323 |
| The Role of Information and Communication Technology | 352 |
| Conclusions for Management | 361 |
| 9. Rediscovering People as Resources: Improving Human Performance in Organizations | 369 |
| Drivers for the Expansion of Human Performance Limits in Organizations | 369 |
| The Rediscovery of Human Work as a Primary Organizational Resource | 375 |
| New Demands on Employees and Managers in the Boundary-less Firm | 380 |
| Managers, Employees and Organizational Learning | 389 |
| Designing Incentives Within the New Organizational Concepts | 402 |
| Conclusions for Management | 410 |
| References | 415 |
| Index | 449 |