

Contents

List of figures and tables	vii
Series editor's preface	ix
Preface and acknowledgements	xi
List of abbreviations	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Political theory and EU politics	4
1.1 Concepts of the European integration process	4
1.2 The role of organised interests in the policy process	31
1.3 An inclusive analytical framework for the study of EU social policy in the 1990s	52
2 Social policy from Messina to Maastricht	55
2.1 The development of the 'social dimension' up to the Maastricht Treaty	55
2.2 The European 'social partners' prior to the Maastricht Treaty	70
2.3 Synopsis: the 'social dimension' before Maastricht	76
3 Social policy in the Maastricht Treaty	78
3.1 The Maastricht innovations	78
3.2 Why it was done: the origins of the Social Protocol	84
4 Policy-making under the Social Protocol	97
4.1 The first case: European Works Councils	97
4.2 The second case: parental leave	114
4.3 The third case: atypical work	129

4.4 The practice of the Social Agreement: an overview 146

4.5 Synopsis and the future 149

5 The evolution of social interest intermediation 156

5.1 The major interest groups and their strategies vis-à-vis the EC social dimension 156

5.2 The development of a negotiation pattern 161

5.3 The issue of representativeness 164

5.4 The role of the 'state' 169

5.5 Why a corporatist policy community?

The incentive structure 173

6 Conclusions and the future 186

6.1 Towards a corporatist policy community 187

6.2 Group structure follows strategy follows ideations 191

6.3 *Neofunctionalism and intergovernmentalism:
the lessons from social policy* 196

6.4 The role of Euro-level institutions and ideations 200

6.5 Which future for the EU's social dimension? 204

Notes 208

References 234

Index 253

Figures and tables

Figures

1.1	Corporatism as a two-dimensional phenomenon	35
1.2	Policy network ideal-types	48
1.3	Preference/identity formation and European integration theory	53
2.1	Pre-1991 group set-up and decision patterns in EC social policy	75
6.1	The evolution of the EC social policy network over time	193
6.2	Core and periphery of the EC social policy network after Maastricht	194

Tables

1.1	Dimensions of spill-over	9
1.2	Schools of integration theory	19
1.3	Subtypes of 'institutionalism'	22
1.4	Genealogy of 'corporatisms' in Europe	38
2.1	Innovative regulative action under the 1989 social action programme	69
3.1	The attribution of explicit social policy competences to the European Union	82
4.1	Euro-Works Councils: The preferences of labour and industry	105
4.2	The European Works Councils Directive (overview)	109
4.3	The preferences in the parental leave collective negotiations	118
4.4	The Parental Leave Agreement (overview)	120
4.5	A comparison of the Parental Leave Agreement and the Commission's 1983 proposal	123
4.6	The preferences in the atypical work negotiations	135
4.7	The Part-Time Agreement (overview)	138
4.8	Comparison of the Part-Time Agreement and the Commission's 1990 proposals	141
4.9	Policy projects under the Social Agreement (overview)	150
5.1	Towards a corporatist EC social policy community: the incentive structure	185