

Contents

Introduction: The Self-Positing Society William Rasch	I
PART I. HUSSERL, SCIENCE, MODERNITY
1. The Modern Sciences and Phenomenology	33
2. The Modernity of Science	61
PART II. PARADOX AND OBSERVATION
3. The Paradox of Observing Systems	79
4. Deconstruction as Second-Order Observing	94
5. Identity—What or How?	113
6. The Cognitive Program of Constructivism and the Reality That Remains Unknown	128
PART III. COMMUNICATION
7. What Is Communication?	155
8. How Can the Mind Participate in Communication?	169
PART IV. CODA: "NOT IN FRANKFURT"
9. I See Something You Don't See	187
Notes	197
Works Cited	213
Index	225