

---

Contents

---

List of figures	ix
Contributors	x
Introduction: Understanding innovation, organizational change and technology	1
Ian McLoughlin and Martin Harris
1 Technological knowledge, strategic choice and the neo-Schumpeterian school	27
Martin Harris
2 Appropriability of technology and internal organization	42
Paul Willman
3 Flexible technologies, markets and the firm: strategic choices and FMS	61
Stephen Hill, Martin Harris and Roderick Martin
4 Re-inventing the organization? Towards a critique of business process re-engineering	87
Leslie Willcocks and Keith Grint
5 Advanced technology and the development of new forms of work organization	111
Patrick Dawson
6 Role taking and role switching in organizational change: the four pluralities	127
David Buchanan and John Storey
7 Implementing vulnerable socio-technical change projects	146
Richard Badham, Paul Couchman and Ian McLoughlin
8 Universal solutions or local contingencies? Tensions and contradictions in the mutual shaping of technology and work organization	170
Robin Williams

9 Information systems as metaphor: innovation and the 3 Rs of representation	186
Paul Jackson
10 Babies, bathwater, guns and roses	207
Ian McLoughlin
Index	222

---

Figures

---

2.1 The 'bundling' of technical and business knowledge	50
2.2 Skills and appropriability	54
2.3 Types of 'know-how'	56
3.1 The new technological paradigm	64
4.1 Core process improvements	96
4.2 The 10 most significant barriers in BPR programmes	100
7.1 Levels of teamwork in team-based manufacture	148
7.2 Degrees of vulnerability in change projects	151
7.3 Configurational process model	158
8.1 Schematic model of the development of technology and organization	175
8.2 Volume/variety characteristics of software supply strategies	176
9.1 Representation of time and space	197
10.1 The concept of engineering system	210

Figure 8.2 appears by permission of Oxford University Press and Figure 10.1 by permission of Cambridge University Press