

CONTENTS

List of acronyms	x
Introduction	1
1 Types of flexibility	5
Introduction	5
Contracts of employment	5
Flexible employment	6
The spread of flexible employment	7
The relative importance of different forms of flexible employment	10
Gender, age and flexible employment	13
Regulation of termination of employment	13
Flexibility in employment and job tenure	14
Pay flexibility	16
The changing role and perceptions of the minimum wage	16
Linking pay to performance	19
Attenuating or breaking the link between wages and prices	24
Working-time flexibility	26
Annualization of working time	26
Innovations in daily and weekly working hours	28
New methods of compensating overtime	31
Work organization flexibility	33
Overcoming occupational demarcations through skill enhancement	36
Teamwork	40

2	Means of introducing flexibility	45
	Introduction	45
	Legislation	47
	Nature and function	47
	How rules fit together: The hierarchy of legal norms	50
	Prescriptive or framework legislation	52
	Collective bargaining	55
	Collective agreements	55
	The interplay between collective bargaining and legislation	57
	Individual contracts of employment	60
	Existence of a contract of employment	60
	The contract of employment as an instrument for introducing flexibility	62
	Employers' unilateral action	65
3	The role of the State and the bargaining structure	67
	Introduction	67
	Industrialized countries with "voluntarist" industrial relations	68
	European countries with a tradition of social partnership	72
	The role of the State	73
	The level of collective bargaining	76
	The role of the State and the bargaining structure in Central and Latin America	82
	The role of the State and the bargaining structure in Asia	84
	Concluding remarks	87
4	The positions of the social partners on labour market flexibility	89
	Introduction	89
	Employers' positions	90
	Employment flexibility	91
	Wage flexibility	93
	Working-time flexibility	94
	Work organization and skill formation	96
	Trade unions' positions	99
	Employment flexibility	100
	Wage flexibility	102
	Working-time flexibility	104
	Work organization	105
	Factors affecting union policy	108
	The growing role of works councils, and how unions view it	111
	Concluding remarks	113

5 Outcomes of negotiations over flexibility	115
Introduction	115
Some basic issues concerning trade-offs in flexibility bargaining	116
Trade-offs at levels above the enterprise	119
Trade-offs at the central level	119
Trade-offs at the sectoral level	124
Trade-offs at the enterprise level	126
Trade-offs over job security	126
Wage restraint for job security	127
Skill flexibility for job security	128
Contingent work for job security	128
Cuts in working time for job security	129
Trade-offs over redundancy alternatives	130
Employee ownership for securing jobs	130
Shorter hours to save jobs	132
Compensation cuts or freezes for minimizing lay-offs	133
Trade-offs over working time	134
Annualized hours for shorter working time	134
Flexible hours for added time off	136
Shift work for higher wages	136
Improved attendance for shorter hours	137
Trade-offs over workers' lifestyles	137
Flexible hours for shorter hours	138
Part-time work for more family time	138
Compressed schedules for greater leave time	139
Telecommuting for avoiding relocation	140
Trade-offs in other areas	140
Shorter hours to expand employment	142
Concluding remarks	144
Conclusion	145
Bibliography	151
Tables
1.1 Evolution of part-time and temporary workers as a percentage of total employment in selected OECD countries, 1985, 1990 and 1995	9
1.2 Distribution of part-time employment, male and female, in selected OECD countries, 1990 and 1996	14