

Contents

Preface	xv
Chapter 1 Financial analysis	1
Chapter objectives	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Financial analysis and analysts	3
1.2.1 The demand for financial analysis	3
1.2.2 Sources of financial information	9
1.2.3 The firm	16
1.2.4 Investment	23
1.3 Theoretical developments	25
1.3.1 The role of theory	25
1.3.2 Empirical research and financial databases	26
1.3.3 Efficient market research	27
1.3.4 Positive accounting theory	27
1.3.5 Social and political considerations	29
1.4 Structure of this text	30
Notes	31
Bibliography	33
Questions	33
A1.1 Example financial analysis report	35
Chapter 2 Financial statements	67
Chapter objectives	67
2.1 Introduction	67
2.2 Conventional financial accounting	68
2.2.1 The uses and objectives of financial statements	68
2.2.2 The accounting process	72
2.2.3 Measurement problems in accounting	74
2.3 Example financial reports	80
2.3.1 The accounting statements	80
2.3.2 International accounting differences	88
2.4 Accounting choice and policy making	91

2.4.1	The impact of accounting alternatives	92
2.4.2	Criteria for accounting choice	98
2.4.3	The implications of the efficient market hypothesis (EMH)	98
2.5	Alternative accounting systems	102
2.5.1	Current cost accounting (CCA)	102
2.5.2	Cash flow accounting (CFA)	107
2.6	Conclusion	110
	Notes	111
	Bibliography	113
	Questions	115
A2.1	Comparison of international accounting principles	118

Chapter 3 Ratios in cross-sectional analysis 120

	Chapter objectives	120
3.1	Introduction	120
3.2	Ratio analysis — techniques and problems	124
3.2.1	Scaling factor selection	128
3.2.2	Ratio selection	129
3.2.3	Examples of ratio computation and interpretation	131
3.3	The functional form of accounting ratios	136
3.3.1	The form of ratios	138
3.3.2	Generalised tests of ratio form	140
3.4	Interrelationships between accounting variables	142
3.4.1	A priori typologies	142
3.4.2	Statistical relationships	143
3.4.3	Conclusions for ratio choice	148
3.5	Distributional characteristics of accounting ratios	150
3.5.1	Expected ratio distributions	150
3.5.2	Evidence on ratio and transformation distributions	151
3.5.3	Dealing with ratio distributions	155
3.6	Conclusion	158
	Notes	159
	Bibliography	160
	Questions	161

Chapter 4 Time-series analysis and forecasting 167

	Chapter objectives	167
4.1	Introduction	167
4.2	Accounting time-series	168

4.2.1	Objectives of time-series analysis	168
4.2.2	Structural change in accounting time-series	170
4.2.3	Dealing with structural change	171
4.2.4	Time-series data analysis	172
4.2.5	Modelling the data	174
4.3	Evidence on the behaviour of accounting time-series	176
4.3.1	Empirical evidence concerning earnings behaviour	176
4.3.2	The determinants of diversity in earnings behaviour	179
4.4	Forecasting accounting numbers	182
4.4.1	Forecasting models of accounting earnings	182
4.4.2	Evaluation of forecast efficiency	184
4.4.3	Determinants of forecast error accuracy	186
4.5	Management and security analysts' forecasts	187
4.5.1	Management forecasts	187
4.5.2	Investment analysts' published forecasts	188
4.6	Share price and earnings forecasts	195
4.7	Conclusion	198
	Notes	199
	Bibliography	200
	Questions	201

Chapter 5 The capital markets

204

	Chapter objectives	204
5.1	Introduction	204
5.2	The capital markets	205
5.2.1	The function of capital markets	208
5.2.2	The International Stock Exchange	209
5.3	Risk and return	213
5.3.1	The return on an investment	214
5.3.2	The risk of an investment	215
5.3.3	Risk aversion	218
5.3.4	Portfolio theory	220
5.4	Asset pricing models	223
5.4.1	The capital asset pricing model	223
5.4.2	Predicting beta and other parameters	226
5.4.3	Evidence on the capital asset pricing model	230
5.4.4	Arbitrage pricing theory	232

- 5.5 Capital market efficiency 235
  - 5.5.1 Definitions of market efficiency 235
  - 5.5.2 Determinants of market efficiency 236
  - 5.5.3 Efficient and perfect capital markets 238
  - 5.5.4 Testing capital market efficiency 239
- 5.6 Efficient market anomalies 243
  - 5.6.1 The weekend and other calendar events 244
  - 5.6.2 Firm size anomaly 246
- 5.7 Conclusion 250
- Notes 251
- Bibliography 253
- Questions 255
- A5.1 Overview of insider dealing legislation 256

Chapter 6 Accounting, value and the capital market 259

- Chapter objectives 259
- 6.1 Introduction 259
- 6.2 Market reaction to accounting announcements 261
  - 6.2.1 Market response to accounting disclosures 262
  - 6.2.2 Abnormal returns and unexpected earnings 264
  - 6.2.3 Other characteristics of accounting disclosure 270
  - 6.2.4 Conclusions regarding market reaction to accounting disclosures 273
- 6.3 Accounting information and market efficiency 274
  - 6.3.1 Post-earnings drift 274
  - 6.3.2 Creative accounting 279
  - 6.3.3 Abnormal returns and analysts' forecasts 280
  - 6.3.4 Inflation and market values 283
  - 6.3.5 Myopia in capital markets 284
- 6.4 Accounting and valuation models 286
  - 6.4.1 Valuation of fixed interest securities 287
  - 6.4.2 The valuation of ordinary shares 290
  - 6.4.3 Valuation practices 293
  - 6.4.4 Price/earnings ratios and valuation 299
- 6.5 Conclusion 304
- Notes 305
- Bibliography 307
- Questions 309

Chapter 7 Accounting measures of risk and return 311

Chapter objectives 311

7.1 Introduction 311

7.2 The relevance of accounting measures of return 313

7.2.1 Uses of alternative measures of return 314

7.2.2 Accounting and Hicksian rates of return 316

7.2.3 Accounting and opportunity cost rates of return 321

7.3 Accounting information and risk assessment 325

7.3.1 The theoretical justification of instrumental variables 327

7.3.2 Empirical evidence regarding fundamental beta 333

7.4 Conclusion 338

Notes 338

Bibliography 339

Questions 341

Chapter 8 Corporate takeovers and allied activity 342

Chapter objectives 342

8.1 Introduction 342

8.2 Background and motives of mergers 344

8.2.1 Categories of corporate restructuring techniques 344

8.2.2 Recent history of mergers and allied activity 346

8.2.3 Alternative industrial structures of mergers 352

8.2.4 Motives for merger activity 353

8.3 Performance record of merger activity 358

8.3.1 Capital market evidence of merger performance 358

8.3.2 Other evidence on merger performance 362

8.3.3 Economic performance of defensive strategies 363

8.4 Characteristics of acquired firms 365

8.5 Predicting and exploiting mergers 368

8.6 Identifying, valuing and costing mergers 372

8.7 Accounting for merger activity and holding companies 374

8.7.1 Associated companies and trade investments 375

- 8.7.2 Subsidiaries and group accounts 375
- 8.7.3 Accounting for acquisitions and mergers 376
- 8.8 Conclusion 377
- Notes 378
- Bibliography 380
- Questions 381
- A.8.1 The City Code on takeovers and mergers 382
- A.8.2 Highlights of the battle for Plessey 384
- A.8.3 A mergers and acquisitions case study 387

Chapter 9 Corporate failure prediction and credit evaluation

391

- Chapter objectives 391
- 9.1 Introduction 391
- 9.2 Financial failure in the UK 393
  - 9.2.1 Historical evidence of financial failure 396
  - 9.2.2 Information used in credit analysis 400
  - 9.2.3 Human information processing and credit decisions 403
- 9.3 Distress prediction and financial variables 405
  - 9.3.1 Univariate analysis of corporate failure 406
- 9.4 Multivariate models of distress prediction 411
  - 9.4.1 Example discriminant procedure 411
  - 9.4.2 UK evidence of failure prediction 415
  - 9.4.3 Conditional probability models 418
  - 9.4.4 Difficulties of failure prediction models 419
- 9.5 Developments of the prediction models 420
  - 9.5.1 Capital markets and the prediction of failure 421
  - 9.5.2 Inflation accounting and failure prediction 426
  - 9.5.3 Predicting the failure of small firms, and the use of non-financial indicators of failure 428
- 9.6 Conclusions 429
- Notes 430
- Bibliography 430
- Questions 433

Chapter 10 Social and employee reporting

435

- Chapter objectives 435
- 10.1 Introduction 435
- 10.2 Corporate social reporting 436

- 10.2.1 Corporate social responsibility 437
- 10.2.2 The development of social responsibility 438
- 10.3 Employee reporting 440
  - 10.3.1 The case for the disclosure of financial information 441
  - 10.3.2 The practice of employee reporting 445
- 10.4 Disclosure of information for collective bargaining 447
  - 10.4.1 Information disclosure in collective bargaining 448
  - 10.4.2 Constraints on information disclosure 449
  - 10.4.3 The impact of information disclosure 451
  - 10.4.4 International comparison of the role of information in collective bargaining 455
  - 10.4.5 Empirical evidence regarding information disclosure 461
- 10.5 Conclusion 463
- Notes 464
- Bibliography 463
- Questions 467

Chapter 11 Regulation of accounting disclosure 469

- Chapter objectives 469
- 11.1 Introduction 469
- 11.2 The standard setting process 471
  - 11.2.1 The system of accounting regulation in the UK 471
  - 11.2.2 International comparison of accounting regulation 474
- 11.3 The case for the regulation of accounting practices 476
  - 11.3.1 Disclosure and market failure 476
  - 11.3.2 Non-market rationales for regulation 477
  - 11.3.3 Costs and benefits of regulation 478
- 11.4 Decision criteria and accounting choice 479
  - 11.4.1 The difficulties of social choice 479
  - 11.4.2 Economic consequences of accounting regulation 481
- 11.5 The political aspects of regulation 483
  - 11.5.1 The management of the political process 483
  - 11.5.2 The visibility of the political process 485

11.5.3	Examples of policy formulation	486
11.6	The possibilities for change	490
11.7	Conclusion	494
	Notes	496
	Bibliography	497
	Questions	498
A.11.1	Current SSAPs and exposure drafts	500
A.11.2	A rank of some characteristics of accounting statements	501
A.11.3	Summary of principal recommendations of the Dearing Committee	502

Author index 505

Subject index 509