

Contents

I

i

Introduction, 1; The Discontinuities of Modernity, 4; Security and Danger, Trust and Risk, 7; Sociology and Modernity, 10; Modernity, Time, and Space, 17; Disembedding, 21; Trust, 29; The Reflexivity of Modernity, 36; Modernity or Post-Modernity? 45; Summary, 53

II

55

The Institutional Dimensions of Modernity, 55; The Globalising of Modernity, 63; Two Theoretical Perspectives, 65; Dimensions of Globalisation, 70

III

79

Trust and Modernity, 79; Trust in Abstract Systems, 83; Trust and Expertise, 88; Trust and Ontological Security, 92; The Pre-Modern and the Modern, 100

vii

IV

112

Abstract Systems and the Transformation of Intimacy, 112; Trust and Personal Relations, 114; Trust and Personal Identity, 120; Risk and Danger in the Modern World, 124; Risk and Ontological Security, 131; Adaptive Reactions, 134; A Phenomenology of Modernity, 137; Deskilling and Reskilling in Everyday Life, 144; Objections to Post-Modernity, 149

V

151

Riding the Juggernaut, 151; Utopian Realism, 154; Future Orientations: The Role of Social Movements, 158; Post-Modernity, 163

VI

174

Is Modernity a Western Project? 174; Concluding Observations, 176

Notes, 181