

CONTENTS

List of Tables and Figures	page ix
Preface	xiii
1 Introduction	1
2 Political Parties and the Structural Conditions of the Economy	16
3 Supply-Side Economic Strategies from a Comparative Perspective (I): Public Investment and the Formation of Human Capital	51
4 Supply-Side Economic Strategies from a Comparative Perspective (II): The Public Business Sector and Tax Strategies	82
5 The Social Democratic Project: Macroeconomic Stability and State Intervention in Spain	105
6 The Political and Electoral Dimensions of the PSOE's Economic Strategy	130
7 Turning around the Postwar Consensus: Defining a Conservative Economic Framework in Britain	156
8 The Political and Electoral Dimensions of the Conservative Economic Strategy	180
9 Partisan Strategies and Electoral Coalitions	202
10 Conclusions	219
Notes	232
References	255
Index	271

TABLES AND FIGURES

TABLES

2.1	Unemployment, education, and unemployment benefits in OECD countries in the 1980s	24
3.1	Overall economic strategies of parties and corresponding policy instruments	53
3.2	Political determinants of fixed capital formation strategies	62
3.3	The interactive effects of partisanship and the organization of labor on the rates of public capital formation	65
3.4	Political determinants of public spending on education in 1970, the 1970s, and the 1980s	72
3.5	Partisanship and public current expenditure on general education in 1970, 1980, and 1989–90: a simulation	74
3.6	Political determinants of active labor market policies in 1985 and 1985–90	78
3.7	Partisanship and public expenditure on active labor market policies in 1985 and 1990: a simulation	80
4.1	The scale of privatizations in OECD countries, 1979–92	84
4.2	Policies toward the public business sector in the 1980s	88–89
4.3	Political and economic determinants of the strategies toward the public business sector in the 1980s	90
4.4	The role of partisanship, divided governments, and economic

	performance in the strategy toward the public business sector: a simulation	92-93
4.5	Political determinants of tax progressivity in 1979-80 and 1988-90	96-97
4.6	Effective tax rates in 1990: a simulation	98
5.1	General government expenditure and public capital formation in Spain, 1982-91	112
5.2	Evolution of Spanish government revenues, 1982-91	114
5.3	Spanish public expenditure on the labor market, 1983-92	120
5.4	Relative weight of the Spanish public business sector in the Spanish economy by selected production sectors, 1985	121
6.1	Fiscal policy in Spain, 1988-93	138
6.2	Political determinants of the regional distribution of public gross fixed capital formation in Spain, 1987-92	143
6.3	Social and economic determinants of the evolution of the PSOE's vote from 1982 to 1993	149
6.4	Proportion of PSOE and AP/PP vote in 1982 and 1993 according to social conditions	152
7.1	Fiscal policy in the United Kingdom, 1978-83	162
7.2	Budgetary plans for general government expenditure and actual results in the United Kingdom, 1982/83-1989/90	165
7.3	Evolution of the composition of public expenditure in the United Kingdom, 1978/79-1989/90	166
7.4	Composition of British tax revenues, 1975-89	171
8.1	Conservative and Labour vote by social sector in the United Kingdom, 1964-92	184
8.2	Council house sales and vote in British General Elections, 1979-87	186
8.3	Party vote, class, and home ownership in the United Kingdom in 1992	187
8.4	Party vote, class, and share ownership in the United Kingdom in 1992	189
8.5	Ideological change within the British electorate, 1974-87	190
8.6	British public opinion and the welfare state	193
8.7	Fiscal policy in the United Kingdom in the early 1990s	198
9.1	French attitudes toward European integration in the early 1990s	215
9.2	Evolution of French vote by social groups, 1981-93	216
9.3	Support for Austrian and German Christian Democrats and Liberals by social sector in 1986 and 1994	217

FIGURES

2.1	The initial set-up	18
2.2	The effects of an exogenous shock	19
2.3	Unemployment, education, and unemployment benefits in OECD countries	23
2.4	The evolution of unemployment in "flexible" and "rigid" labor markets, 1971–95	26–27
2.5	Employment creation and wage dispersion in OECD countries, 1979–90	29
2.6	Equalization through the public supply of skills	31
2.7	A market-based employment strategy	33
2.8	The initial model and the distribution of electoral preferences	41
2.9	The political consequences of an exogenous shock	48
3.1	Fixed capital formation by the general government in OECD countries, 1970–90	54
3.2	Fixed capital formation by the public business sector in OECD countries, 1970–90	55
3.3	Public expenditure on general education in OECD countries, 1970–89	57
3.4	Public expenditure on active labor market policies in OECD countries, 1985–90	58
3.5	Effective tax rates on personal income in OECD countries, 1979–90	59
3.6	Partisan governments and public investment, 1965–90: a simulation	64
3.7	Partisan governments, the budget balance, and public investment, 1965–90: a simulation	67
3.8	Partisan governments, growth rates, and public investment, 1965–90: a simulation	68
5.1	Effective tax rates on personal income in Spain, 1981–90	116
5.2	Financial results of public business groups in Spain, 1982–91	123
5.3	Annual change in gross fixed capital formation by sectors in Spain, 1983–91	125
6.1	The interaction of Socialist governments and trade unions in the 1970s	135
6.2	The interaction of the Socialist government and trade unions in Spain	136
6.3	Evolution of nominal interest rates in Germany and Spain, 1982–93	140
6.4	The ruralization of the PSOE, 1982–93	147
6.5	Level of public transfers and vote for the PSOE, 1982–93	148
7.1	British monetary policy: the evolution of sterling M3, 1979–83	161
7.2	Financial needs of the British public sector, 1978/79–1992/93	168

7.3	Effective tax rates on personal income in the United Kingdom, 1978/79–1992/93	170
7.4	Gross fixed capital formation by the British public sector, 1969–92	175
8.1	Evolution of general government revenue and expenditure in the United Kingdom, 1969–93	199