

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	ix
List of Contributors	xi
Acknowledgments	xii
Introduction	1
Marko Simoneti and Andreja Böhm
1. The Governance of Privatization Funds in the Czech Republic	7
Jozef Kotrba, Evžen Kočenda and Jan Hanousek
2. The Governance of Privatization Funds in Poland	44
Janusz Lewandowski and Roman Szyszko
3. The Governance of Privatization Funds in Slovenia	72
I. The Role of Privatization Funds in Privatization and Post-Privatization	72
Marko Rems
II. Transformation of Privatization Funds	92
Marko Simoneti
III. Management Companies and Issues of Governance of Privatization Funds	104
Božo Jašovič
IV. The Governance of Privatization Funds with Special Reference to the Role of Supervisory Boards	119
Andreja Böhm
4. The Impact of Privatization Funds on Corporate Governance in Mass Privatization Schemes: the Czech Republic, Poland and Slovenia	137
Saul Estrin, Domenico Mario Nuti and Milica Uvalic

5. The Governance of Privatization Funds: Open Issues and Policy Recommendations	163
Marko Simoneti and Andreja Böhm
References and Bibliography	181
Index	189

Figures

1.1	Fund founders: wave 1	17
1.2	Fund founders: wave 2	17
1.3	Wave 1: market shares of the managers of the biggest funds	24
1.4	Wave 2: market shares of the managers of the biggest funds	28
1.5	Wave 1: fund transformation	31
1.6	Wave 2: fund transformation	31
1.7	Wave 1: cumulative market share of the transformed funds	32
1.8	Wave 2: cumulative market share of the transformed funds	32
1.9	Assets in portfolio – small IPFs	35
1.10	Assets in portfolio – big IPFs	36
1.11	Assets by sector – small IPFs	37
1.12	Assets by sector – big IPFs	37
2.1	Percentage of shareholdings in management companies – at the beginning of the program	52
2.2	Objectives of the program	53
2.3	Assessment of safeguards against insider information and arms-length transactions in NIFs	54
2.4	The amount of fixed management fee as a percentage of net asset value as in 1st quarter of 1997	56
2.5	Assessment of the fee structure of management firms	57
2.6	Correlation coefficients of choice order and companies’ financial data	58
2.7	Coefficients of the relative importance of financial results for the whole program	58
2.8	Control structure of NIFs in Poland (1997)	66
2.9	Time horizon of active role of private shareholders of NIFs	66
2.10	Opinion on restrictions on concentration of ownership and rules on mergers and takeovers of NIFs	67
2.11	Assessment of the future effectiveness of restrictions on concentration of ownership and rules on mergers and takeovers of NIFs	68
2.12	Assessment of the level of regulation of the NIF program	70
3.1	Estimated value of social capital in 1,545 companies	76
3.2	Value of social capital by privatization method	76

3.3	Expected investment of vouchers	77
3.4	Means of payment by privatization method	77
3.5	Number of PIFs owned by different groups of MC owners	81
3.6	Value of assets controlled by different groups of MC owners	82
3.7	Distribution of PIFs by MC sponsors and size of PIFs	82
3.8	Performance of companies acquired by different sized PIFs in five auctions in 1996	84
3.9	Average share of unused vouchers by size of PIF at the end of 1996	85
3.10	Percentage of investments in controlling ownership shares	86
3.11	Initial ownership structure of privatized companies	87
3.12	Return on equity ratio for different groups of companies for 1995 and 1996	88
3.13	Prevailing shareholders' monitoring function implemented by PIFs in corporate governance of companies	89
3.14	Attitude to employee's ownership	90
3.15	Distribution of social ownership by method	93
3.16	Does management company act as proxy?	107
3.17	Do dividend payments and successful performance influence the market prices of fund shares?	113

Tables

1.1	Private sector share in the Czech Republic	7
1.2	Timetable for mass privatization	12
1.3	Mass privatization: approved projects	13
1.4	Mass privatization: projects finalized by the FNP	14
1.5	Privatization projects and privatized enterprises in the Czech Republic	14
1.6	Submitters of projects in the Czech Republic	15
1.7	Structure of privatization of joint-stock companies participating in the first wave of voucher privatization	21
1.8	Major financial institutions: state preserves influence	21
1.9	The zero round: funds stand high	22
1.10	Structure of IPFs according to size	23
1.11	Distribution of shares allocated to IPFs, by founder (wave 1)	23
1.12	Distribution of shares allocated to IPFs, by founder (wave 2)	26
1.13	Wave 1: forced administration	30
1.14	Wave 2: forced administration	30
1.15	Portfolio structure by number of IPFs: wave 1	33
1.16	Portfolio structure by number of IPFs: wave 2	33
1.17	Co-owners welcome? – small investment funds' view	39
1.18	Co-owners welcome? – big investment funds' view	40
2.1	National investment funds – names and sponsors of management companies at the beginning of the program	49
2.2	Breakdown of portfolio companies' responses to the question on the management style of NIFs	57
3.1	Prevailing investment policy	85
3.2	Balance sheet of privatization funds, 1996	95
3.3	Profit and loss statement of privatization funds, 1996	96
3.4	Population and sample of privatization investment funds broken down by fund size	106
3.5	Book value of assets of privatization investment funds broken down by quartile rank	106
3.6	Average ownership shares represented by proxies and management companies acting as proxies	108

3.7	Whose representatives are members of the supervisory boards by size distribution of privatization funds?	110
3.8	Estimated time shares will be quoted on the stock exchange by size distribution of privatization funds	113
3.9	Percentage of votes to interrupt management contract and percentage of contracts with severance payment clause	115
3.10	Effective ways of maximizing assets value	120
3.11	Performance evaluation criteria and bases for calculating management fees of privatization funds	123
3.12	Important factors in agreeing to membership	126
3.13	Important characteristics of members of supervisory boards of privatization funds	127
3.14	Most important tasks of supervisory boards	128
3.15	Frequent agenda items	128
3.16	Information received for sessions	129
3.17	Factors influencing voting	130
3.18	Changes requested to management's voting proposals and voting against managers' proposals	130
3.19	Influence of supervisory boards on management and members' individual contributions	131
3.20	Possible forms of transformation of privatization funds	134
4.1	General features of mass privatization programs in the Czech Republic, Poland and Slovenia	146
4.2	Features of investment funds in the Czech Republic, Poland and Slovenia	152