

Contents

| | |
|--|------------|
| Preface | vii |
| Acknowledgments | xi |
| 1 Myths and Legends of the Modern Marketing Concept | 1 |
| PART I Sell, Sell, Sell: The Modern Production Orientation of Marketing Companies | 15 |
| 2 Hobson's Choices in the Marketplace | 17 |
| 3 Without Bad Service, There Wouldn't Be Any Service at All | 31 |
| 4 Advertising Only a Copywriter Would Love | 49 |
| PART II Opportunities Lost: Pitfalls of Arrogant Ignorance | 63 |
| 5 "Hey Gang, Let's Put on a Show!" | 65 |
| 6 A Trade Association Serving Itself | 85 |
| 7 Government "Serving" the Consumers' Interests | 91 |
| PART III Problems of Just Satisfying Consumer Needs | 109 |
| 8 Self-Regulation as a Marketing Tool | 111 |

| | | |
|----------------|---|------------|
| 9 | We'd Rather You Didn't Do That | 131 |
| 10 | Fear of Marketing | 151 |
| 11 | The "Wrong" Benefits I: Politics and Popular Culture | 163 |
| 12 | The "Wrong" Benefits II: Schools and Education | 177 |
| PART IV | Explanations and Criticisms by Misplaced Marketing | 191 |
| 13 | Hiring the Wrong "Right" Person | 193 |
| 14 | The Spam Incentive | 199 |
| 15 | The Limits of Spin | 205 |
| 16 | Before You Decide, Get Out of the Office | 211 |
| PART V | Concluding Notes | 221 |
| 17 | It's Just Misplaced Marketing | 223 |
| | Index | 229 |