

Contents

List of figures and tables	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Theories of small business and society	8
2 The empirical investigation of UK small business	29
3 Small business and the entrepreneur	47
4 Employment relations in small firms	69
5 Alternative forms of small business	92
6 Small business, new technology and innovation	109
7 Small business policy	128
8 Conclusions	149
Notes	157
References	163
Index	172

Figures and tables

Figures

3.1	Types of female entrepreneur	61
4.1	Types of employer control in small firms	73
5.1	Advantages and disadvantages of small and large firms in innovation	110
7.1	Types of small business education	142
2.1n	The job generation process	158
3.1n	Dimensions of occupational role and managerial style	159

Tables

2.1	The small firm sector as defined by the Bolton Committee	30
2.2	Definitions relating to government assistance	32
2.3	Economic activity by Standard Industrial Classification for small business owners and self-employed, GHS 1981-4	37
2.4	Small business owners, self-employed workers and employees: breakdown by gender and age, 1979-84 combined	38
2.5	Incidence and characteristics of small independent establishments with under fifty full-time workers	41
2.6	Problems experienced by respondents to Quarterly Survey	44
2.7	Changes in turnover and employment by 'balance', 1986-8	44
3.1	Small business owners' socio-economic background: GHS: 1979-84	52
4.1	Union representation and industrial action by size of establishment	72
7.1	Index of regional entrepreneurship	133
7.2	Employment concentration and average rates of change in fatal and major injuries, 1981-4	138
7.3	Injuries by size of establishment in British manufacturing	138
2.1n	Representative characteristics of Quarterly Survey sample	158