

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	vii
Patricia Mellencamp. Prologue	1
Meaghan Morris. Banality in Cultural Studies	14
John Caughie. Playing at Being American: Games and Tactics	44
Charlotte Brunsdon. Television: Aesthetics and Audiences	59
Lynn Spigel. Television in the Family Circle: The Popular Reception of a New Medium	73
William Boddy. The Seven Dwarfs and the Money Grubbers: The Public Relations Crisis of US Television in the Late 1950s	98
Eileen R. Meehan. Why We Don't Count: The Commodity Audience	117
Andrew Ross. Techno-Ethics and Tele-Ethics: Three Lives in the Day of Max Headroom	138
Lynne Joyrich. Critical and Textual Hypermasculinity	156
Jane Gaines. Superman and the Protective Strength of the Trademark	173

Margaret Morse.
An Ontology of Everyday Distraction: The Freeway, the Mall, and Television	193
Mary Ann Doane.
Information, Crisis, Catastrophe	222
Patricia Mellencamp.
TV Time and Catastrophe, or Beyond the Pleasure Principle of Television	240
× Stephen Heath.
Representing Television	267
CONTRIBUTORS	303
NAME INDEX	305
SUBJECT INDEX	306