

CONTENTS

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	x
List of Boxes	xi
List of Contributors	xii
Abbreviations	xvii
17. Introduction to Volume II: Corporate and International Strategy, Change, and Flexibility	1
ANDREW CAMPBELL AND DAVID FAULKNER
PART III CORPORATE STRATEGY
18. Why Diversify? Four Decades of Management Thinking	17
MICHAEL GOOLD AND KATHLEEN LUCHS
19. The Rationale for Multi-SBU Companies	43
C. K. PRAHALAD AND YVES L. DOZ
20. The Role of the Parent Company	72
ANDREW CAMPBELL
21. Mergers and Acquisitions: Motives, Value Creation, and Implementation	95
RICHARD SCHOENBERG
22. Cooperative Strategy: Strategic Alliances and Networks	118
DAVID FAULKNER

PART IV INTERNATIONAL STRATEGY

23. International Strategy 159
DAVID FAULKNER
24. Strategies for Multinational Enterprises 183
ALAN RUGMAN AND ALAIN VERBEKE
25. Globalization and the Multinational Enterprise 206
PETER BUCKLEY

PART V CHANGE

26. Managing Strategic Change 237
RICHARD WHIPP
27. Turnarounds 267
PETER MCKIERNAN
28. Organizational Structure 319
RICHARD WHITTINGTON
29. Strategy Innovation 349
PETER J. WILLIAMSON

PART VI FLEXIBILITY

30. Game Theory in Strategy 383
J. H. POWELL
31. Strategy, Heuristics, and Real Options 416
BRUCE KOGUT AND NALIN KULATILAKA
32. Strategic Flexibility: Creating Dynamic Competitive Advantages 447
HENK W. VOLBERDA

FIGURES

18.1	Growth-share matrix	24
18.2	Evolution of thinking on corporate strategy and diversification	37
19.1	A framework for wealth creation	45
20.1	Four ways in which parents attempt to create value	74
20.2	Corporate strategy framework	88
21.1	Global merger and acquisition activity	97
21.2	Achieving earnings per share enhancement via acquisition using highly rated shares	99
21.3	Primary determinants of acquisition performance	103
21.4	Value creation within acquisitions	107
21.5	Types of acquisition integration approaches	110
22.1	The prisoners' dilemma	120
22.2	Federated enterprises are developing from both directions	122
22.3	The make/buy/ally matrix	123
22.4	Coop strategies fall into two distinct types	125
22.5	Different forms of cooperation	127
22.6	Strategic alliance forms	133
22.7	The best alliances should aim for both strategic and cultural fit	136
22.8	Almost all alliances involve both cooperation and competition	138
22.9	Communications in an equal partner network	149
22.10	The communication pattern in the dominated network	151
23.1	Configuration/coordination matrix	160
23.2	The Stopford and Wells (1972) matrix	163
23.3	An 'integration-responsiveness' grid	164
23.4	The international corporate structure matrix	173
23.5	Common organizational forms	179
24.1	Porter's three generic strategies	184
24.2	Porter's global strategies	185
24.3	Porter's extended generic strategies framework for global industries	186
24.4	Principal categories of efficiency-based strategies	190
24.5	Business networks in international strategic management	196
25.1	Internationalization of firms: conflict of markets	207
26.1	Change director	238

26.2	Processes of change within orthodox organization theory	244
26.3	Making change happen	246
26.4	Organizational change	248
26.5	Strategic change processes	250
26.6	Types of crisis management	255
26.7	Resistance to change	259
26.8	Strategic change matrix	264
27.1	Six stages of turnaround	269
27.2	A full marketing communications model	275
27.3	Decline chain factors	277
27.4	Triggering action	285
27.5	Reactions to declining performance	286
27.6	The dangers from delay	287
27.7	Actual performance affects acceptability	287
27.8	The extended Cyert and March model (see Grinyer and McKiernan 1990 for a fuller version)	293
27.9	Relationship between operating state and recovery state	304
27.10	Simple learning loop	310
28.1	Structural change and performance at Unilever	324
28.2	The five stages of growth	325
28.3a	The changing structures of DuPont: DuPont's functional structure, 1919–1921	328
28.3b	The changing structures of DuPont: DuPont's new divisional structure, August 1921	329
28.3c	The changing structures of DuPont: DuPont's divisional structure, 1999	329
28.4	The Financière Agache holding company structure	330
28.5	Types of organizational structure	331
28.6	Organizational structures in large Western European industrial firms, 1950–1993	332
28.7	International structures	334
28.8	Traditional structures for international business	335
28.9	The transnational structure	335
28.10	Softbank: a cyber-keiretsu?	337
28.11a	ABB group organizational chart, 1997	340
28.11b	ABB group organizational chart, 1998	341
29.1	ROCE, P/E, and strategy decay	355
29.2	Strategy convergence	357
29.3	The hidden constraints: narrow capabilities and market knowledge	361
29.4	The trader—'aware but incapable'	362
29.5	The prisoner—'capable but unaware'	364
29.6	Creating strategic options at Acer	367

29.7	The strategy innovation pipeline	373
29.8	The life cycle of an option on the future	377
30.1	Extended game tree for product/market investment game, pay-offs to (Row, Column), respectively	393
30.2	Starting from the BATNA point, P, the parties move up and right towards a final negotiated position which is better for both of them than their BATNAs	403
30.3	A can increase her portion either by increasing her BATNA or by decreasing B's BATNA	404
30.4	Powergraph network structure	408
30.5	Powergraph model of battle for Trafalgar	410
31.1	Correspondence of technology and organization	426
31.2	The implications of hysteresis on the choice of new techniques	427
31.3	Choice of capability set 'static case'	434
31.4	Static and dynamic hysteresis	437
31.5	Expanded capability sets	438
31.6	Effects of learning	439
32.1	Different modes of strategy depicted as a constellation of the degree of environmental turbulence, the comprehensiveness of planning activities, and the extent of organizational activities	456
32.2	The paradox of flexibility	464
32.3	A strategic framework of flexibility	468
32.4	Types of flexibility	469
32.5	The rigid organization form	476
32.6	The planned organization form	477
32.7	The flexible organization form	478
32.8	The chaotic organization form	480
32.9	A typology of alternative flexible forms for coping with hypercompetition	481
32.10	Single trajectories of revitalization	484
32.11	A dual-trajectory revitalization for multi-unit firms facing extreme competition	486
32.12	KLM Cargo: a trajectory of radical transformation	490
32.13	Permanent flexible multi-unit firms	492
32.13a	The network corporation	493
32.13b	The dual corporation	494
32.13c	The oscillating corporation	497
32.13d	The balanced corporation	498
32.14	The flexibility trajectory of successful firms of the twenty-first century	501

T A B L E S

20.1	Company backgrounds	82
22.1	Differences between different organizational forms	142
23.1	Global strategy: an organizing framework	167
27.1	Symptoms of corporate decline	274
27.2	Main secondary causes of decline	278
27.3	'Generic' turnaround strategies	306
28.1	The world's largest firms by revenues, 1999	321
28.2	Evolving types of multi-divisional	339
29.1	Designing a portfolio of options for the mobile telephone business	371
30.1	Normal form game of product/market investment, pay-offs to (Row, Column), respectively	392
30.2	Prisoners' dilemma game, pay-offs to (TrustCo, CheatCo), respectively	394
30.3	Market entry Chicken game, pay-offs to (ImproverCo, AspirantCo), respectively	396
30.4	Hawk-Dove game, pay-offs to (A, B), respectively	400
30.5	Rendezvous game, pay-offs to (Emma, Dai), respectively	405
31.1	Strategizing as cognitive frames	420
31.2	T_{ij} and Ω_{lm} switching cost pairs	433
32.1	Developments within strategic management and their contributions to organizational flexibility	460
32.2	Examples of internal and external types of flexibility	471

BOXES

20.1	Value creation insights	84
20.2	Typical reasons for parenting opportunities	89
20.3	ABB: parenting advantage statement (mid-1990s)	90
23.1	McKinsey: a mini-case	177
24.1	Shelter-based strategies	189
24.2	The global shipbuilding industry	189
26.1	The BBC	239
28.1	Wal-Mart's structure	321
28.2	Complementary structural change at Unilever	323
28.3	Structuring Netscape	326
28.4	Ove Arup's structural reformation	327
28.5	DuPont discovers the M-form	328
28.6	Polycentricity at Procter & Gamble	336
28.7	ABB—Beyond the M-form?	340
28.8	Microsoft 'Reorgs'	342
30.1	The battle for Trafalgar	409
32.1	The Red Queen effect	449
32.2	GM's competence trap: extreme exploitation	462
32.3	Apple's renewal trap: extreme exploration	465
32.4	The tensions between exploitation and exploration within KLM	466
32.5	Dual migration paths within the Dutch PTT Post	488
32.6	Mini-case: radical transformation of KLM Cargo	489
32.7	Balancing acts in 3M, HP, and Motorola	498