1. A WORLD IN TRANSITION 1
 - Overview of Study 2
 - Theoretical Framework 5
 - Precursor Studies 5
 - Limitations That Point the Way 8
 - Integrating Levels and Perspectives 9
 - Environments 17
 - Limitations of Our Research 22
 - The Larger Issues 24
 - Profound Institutional Change 24
 - Congruence 26
 - Structuration 26

2. THE CASE OF THE SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA:
FOCAL POPULATIONS AND ORGANIZATIONS 28
 - San Francisco Bay Area 28
 - Organizational Actors in the Healthcare Field 32
 - Types of Social Actors 32
 - Functions of Social Actors 33
 - Institutional Roles of Social Actors 35
 - Focal Populations of Organizations 36
 - Selecting the Populations 36

Data Collected on Focal Populations	38
Hospitals	39
Health Maintenance Organizations	40
Home Health Agencies	44
End-Stage Renal Disease Centers	46
Multihospital and Integrated Healthcare Systems	47
Other Organizational Populations	49
Medical Groups	49
Preferred Provider Organizations	50
Focal Organizational Case Studies	51
Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program	51
Palo Alto Medical Clinic	53
Stanford University Hospital	53
San Jose Hospital	54
Data Sources	55
Conclusion: Diverse Data, Multiple Levels	55
3. CHANGING HEALTHCARE DELIVERY SYSTEMS	57
Major Trends in U.S. Healthcare Delivery Systems	57
Increased Concentration	58
Increased Specialization	58
Increased Integration and Diversification	59
Increased Linkages among Healthcare Organizations	60
Increased Privatization	60
Increased Market Orientation	61
Theories of Organizational Change	62
A General Typology	62
Internal versus External Sources of Change	63
Intentional versus Unintentional Change	65
Incremental versus Discontinuous Change	67
Changes in Populations of Healthcare Organizations	69
Trends in Focal Organizational Populations	70
Trends in Two Other Populations	86
Comparing Population Trends	88
Blurred and Shifting Boundaries	91
Conclusion	95
4. PROCESSES SHAPING ORGANIZATIONAL POPULATIONS: ECOLOGICAL AND ADAPTIVE CHANGE	96
Changes in Hospital Characteristics	97

	Hospital Size	97
	Hospital Attributes	103
	Changes in Organizational Ownership	109
	Trend toward Proprietary Forms	110
	Trend toward Privatization	118
	Changes in Organizational Subtypes	119
	Generalist versus Specialist Hospitals	119
	Forms of Physician Organization among HMOs	120
	Conclusion	121
5.	RESOURCE ENVIRONMENTS AND ORGANIZATIONAL DYNAMICS	124
	Perspectives on Material-Resource Environments	124
	Health Economics	125
	Industrial Organization Economics	128
	Trends in Material-Resource Environments in the Bay Area and Beyond	130
	Changes of Characteristics Affecting Demand	130
	Changes in Characteristics Affecting Supply	139
	Changes in Technology	144
	Rise in Healthcare Expenditures	146
	Resource Environments and Healthcare Organizations	148
	Resource Partitioning	148
	Institutional Effects on Resource Environments	149
	Entries into Organizational Populations	150
	Exits from Organizational Populations	156
	Effects of Institutional Eras on Resource Environments	161
	Conclusion	164
6.	THE CHANGING INSTITUTIONAL ENVIRONMENT	166
	Conceptualizing and Studying Institutional Environments	167
	Three Institutional Elements	167
	Three Institutional Components	170
	Charting Change in Healthcare Institutional Components	175
	Institutional Eras in American Healthcare	175
	The Era of Professional Dominance (1945–65)	178
	The Era of Federal Involvement (1966–82)	195
	The Era of Managerial Control and Market Mechanisms (1983–present)	217
	Conclusion	234

7. INSTITUTIONAL ENVIRONMENTS AND ORGANIZATIONAL LEGITIMACY 236
 - Governance Structures and Healthcare Organizations 236
 - Legitimacy and Organizational Survival 237
 - Normative Legitimacy 238
 - Cognitive Legitimacy 248
 - Regulative Legitimacy 250
 - Legitimacy, Performance, and Organizational Survival 258
 - Conclusion 263

8. HORIZONTAL, VERTICAL, AND VIRTUAL INTEGRATION OF HEALTHCARE ORGANIZATIONS 265
 - Multihospital Systems 267
 - The Development of Hospital Associations and Multihospital Systems 267
 - Trends in Bay Area Systems 271
 - Governance Structures in Systems 276
 - Determinants of System Membership 280
 - Integrated Healthcare Systems 287
 - Loci of Integration 287
 - Modes of Integration and Interdependence 288
 - Types of Integration 290
 - Combining Forms of Interdependence and Modes of Integration 296
 - Evidence of Rising Integration in the Bay Area 296
 - Analysis of "Make" or "Buy" Decisions 301
 - Conclusion: The Changing Structure of Linkages among Healthcare Organizations 308

9. INSTITUTIONAL ENVIRONMENTS AND THE ORGANIZATIONAL FIELD 312
 - Depicting Profound Institutional Change 312
 - Institutional Logics 312
 - Institutional Fragmentation 317
 - Dynamics of Institutional Change 324
 - Decline of Professional Dominance 326
 - Advance of Managerial-Market Orientation 328
 - Field-level Forces and Organizational Populations 329
 - Field-level Forces and Fitness of Forms 330
 - Empirical Evidence 333
 - Summary and Conclusion 337

10. INSTITUTIONAL CHANGE AND STRUCTURATION PROCESSES	340
Modes of Governance and the Welfare State	340
Identifying Profound Change in Social Systems: Reviewing Criteria and Evidence	345
Multilevel Change	345
Discontinuous Change	346
New Rules and Governance Mechanisms	348
New Logics	349
New Types of Actors	351
New Meanings	353
New Relations among Actors	354
Changes in Organizational Boundaries	355
Change in Field Boundaries	356
The Structuration and Destructuration of Organizational Fields	358
