Contents

List of Maps, Figures and Boxes viii
Abbreviations x
ALNAP: Active Learning Network for Accountability and Performance in Humanitarian Action xiii
Acknowledgements xiv
About the Editors and Contributors xv
Foreword xix

1 Introduction

Adrian Wood, Raymond Apthorpe and John Borton

Who is this book for? 2  The international humanitarian system and trends in humanitarian assistance 4  The growth of humanitarian evaluation 10 Introduction to the case studies 12  The contributors 16  Learning from the case studies 17

2 Somalia: Towards Evaluating the Netherlands' Humanitarian Assistance

Phil O’Keefe, Ted Kliest, John Kirkby and Wiert Flkkema

Objectives of the study 21  Designing the evaluation 21  Compiling the teams and preparing for work 23  Analytical approach 25  Scope and limitations of the evaluation 26  Approaches to the evaluation of the cases 28  Fieldwork: understanding the situation on the ground 30  Getting to conclusions 32  Writing up 34  Self-evaluation 36  Impact and follow-up 38

3 Exploring the Swedish Emergency Relief Experience in the Horn of Africa

Adrian Wood

Landing the contract 39  Compiling the team 41  Familiarization and preparing for the planning meeting 43  Meeting up 45  Field process: adjusting to reality 49
4 Evaluating Sida’s Complex Emergency Assistance in Cambodia: Conflicting Perceptions

Claes Lindahl

The art and the science of evaluation /59 Origins of the mission and selection of the team /61 Coping with the Terms of Reference /63 Not developing a methodology /65 The narrow timeframe /66 Fieldwork /66 Report writing /67 Lessons for humanitarian assistance evaluation /68 Conclusions: more of a science, but still mostly an art /72

5 Doing Study 3 of the Joint Evaluation of Emergency Assistance to Rwanda: The Team Leader’s Perspective

John Borton

Landing the contract /78 Losing the Team Leader and starting work /79 Assembling the team /83 Back-up and support issues /86 Fieldwork methods /87 Preparing the draft report /90 Preparing the final report /95 Follow-up /98 Some concluding comments /99

6 Mission Possible: Six Years of WFP Emergency Food Aid in West Africa

Raymond Apthorpe

Team composition /104 Team dynamics /105 Terms of Reference and field reality /107 Relations with our client’s country directors /111 Fighting false socio-political assumptions and the limitations of ‘consultancy’ /112 Getting from evidential findings to conclusions and then policy recommendations /114 Briefing and debriefings in Rome and in-country /117 An independent evaluation? /120 A final proposition /120

7 Review of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies’ Tajikistan Programme

Peter Wiles

Context for the review /124 Setting up the review /125 Preparations before the fieldwork /126 The fieldwork /127 Functioning of the team /128 Debriefing /128 Writing the report /129 The report and its follow-up /129 Reflections /131

David A. M. Lea

Setting up the evaluation and team formation / 134 Contracts / 135 Terms of Reference / 135 Briefings / 137 Developing methodology / 138 Selection of study areas / 140 Undertaking fieldwork / 140 Team coherence / 142 Relations with the commissioning agents / 143 Writing the report / 144 Reflections on the Review process / 148

An Experimental and Inclusive Approach to Evaluation as a Lesson-learning Tool: Groupe URD's Work on the Post-Hurricane Mitch Emergency

François Grunewald, Claire Pirotte and Véronique de Geoffroy

Initiation of the programme / 153 The work of the Task Force / 155 The period prior to the mission / 156 The mission / 159 After the mission / 163 Conclusions / 168

UNICEF-DFID Joint Evaluation of UNICEF’s Kosovo Emergency Preparedness and Response

John Telford

The 1999 Kosovo crisis and UNICEF strategy / 174 Setting up the evaluation and recruiting the team / 175 Starting work: reviewing the TOR and planning / 176 Field methods and organization / 177 Fieldwork / 179 Team dynamics / 181 Coming to a team position / 182 Writing up: modus operandi / 183 Debriefing and finalization / 184 Reflections on method and process / 185

Conclusions

Adrian Wood, Raymond Apthorpe and John Borton

The diversity of the studies / 190 Lessons for the practicalities of ‘doing’ humanitarian evaluations / 196 Improving the approach to humanitarian evaluations / 208

References

Index
Maps, Figures and Boxes

Maps

2.1 Somalia 20
3.1 Horn of Africa 40
4.1 Cambodia 60
5.1 Rwanda 75
6.1 Liberia 103
7.1 Tajikistan 123
8.1 Papua New Guinea 139
8.2 Papua New Guinea delivery points 141
9.1 Central America 154
10.1 Kosovo 172

Figures

1.1 Principal resource flows and routes between donors and beneficiaries within the international humanitarian system 5
1.2 Long-term trends in bilateral humanitarian assistance 8
1.3 Timeline of the case studies 14
2.1 Contrasting perceptions of agencies and recipients 32
5.1 Organizational structure of the JEEAR 77
9.1 What did we observe in the field? 162

Boxes

2.1 List of interventions selected for study 24
2.2 Checklist for case studies 27
2.3 A summary of major evaluation findings 36
3.1 Summary of the main aspects of the Terms of Reference 46
3.2 Summary of recommendations 55
5.1 Study 3 timetable 78