Contents

Series Foreword ix
Acknowledgments xi
Introduction xiii

I Cost-Effectiveness and the Controversial Necessity of Health Care Rationing 1

1 Rationing According to Cost-Effectiveness: Explicit, Quantifiable, and Unacceptable? 3

2 The Politics of Defining Health Care Rationing 11

3 The Necessity of Rationing Health Care 31

4 The Challenge of Measuring Community Values in Ways Appropriate for Making Rationing Decisions 47

5 How Do People Want to Ration Health Care? Balancing Cost-Effectiveness and Fairness 67

II Cost-Effectiveness and Bedside Rationing: Do Two Wrongs Make a Right? 97

6 The Case Against Bedside Rationing 99

7 Recognizing Bedside Rationing 111

8 Linguistic Confusion about Bedside Rationing 125

9 The Unbearable Rightness of Bedside Rationing 137

III The Future of Cost-Effectiveness Analysis and Health Care Rationing 153
10 Future Possibilities for Improving How Cost-Effectiveness Analysis Incorporates Public Rationing Preferences 155

11 The Future of Cost-Effectiveness Analysis and Health Care Rationing 173

References 185

Index 199