CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii
Foreword xvii
Introduction: Nowhere to hide, nowhere to run xxiii
Prologue: Genesis of a revolution xxxi

1 THE DEATH OF OPEN OUTCRY
Information technology defeats the establishment 1
Why open outcry died 1
Crunch time for brokers 5
The electronic alternative 7
What threatened LIFFE? 11
The view from America 22

2 THE NEW REALITY
Changing the food chain forever 29
New market solutions 32
New markets, new capital 34
Parallel lives 39

3 TEACHING OLD DOGS NEW TRICKS
Why exchanges need to rethink their relationship with the outside world 43
A death in the club 43
The lawyer, the brewer, and the case of the very public offering 45
The new borderless perspective 49
The new merchant princes of capitalism 51
Regulators in revolt and at war 56
Trying the new model on the old 59
Vertical or horizontal integration? 60
CONTENTS

4 THE PERILS OF TRANSITION

How the revolution can kill you 63

Plus ça change 63

Matif's brave new world 75

What Matif taught other markets 78

New-model market relations 80

Alles in Ordnung – or Alice in Wonderland? 82

5 NEW MANAGEMENT FOR THE NEW REALITY

Where institutions need to get it right 91

The new microbankers 91

The DPO threatens the exchange 98

Down but not out 100

The NewVas paradigm 102

Discounted broker – but not discount brokers 105

Surviving screens: a trader's primer 107

6 POWER TO THE PEOPLE

The staggering rise of the private individual 111

The Global Paradox hits financial markets 111

The hedge-fund phenomenon 114

New math, new risks: the foibles of avarice 115

New alternatives 117

Bottlenecks in the system 125

The remarkable rise of the private client 128

The amazing rise of the online broker 131

The wonders of Internet trading 133

A new blueprint for a new local 135

The e-local primer 138

The data revolution 144

7 THE NEW MERITOCRACY

How the Capital Market Revolution impacts upon the world at large 149

The erosion of sovereignty 150

How to squander your advantage overnight 151

Farewell nation state 154
8 THE MICROBANKING MANIFESTO
   How small can be beautiful too
   A premium on incompetence
   Micropayment – the key to new banking
   New currencies
   Governments lose more power
   The venture capital revolution

9 LIVING WITH THE REVOLUTION
   How you can survive and profit in turbulent times
   Survival skills for the revolution
   The new markets
   The job for me

Conclusion: Can global recession kill the cyber elite?

Epilogue: The shape of things to come

The revolutionary’s lexicon

Further reading for revolutionaries

List of abbreviations

Index