Foreword by R.L. Gregory (Bristol, UK)	ix
Preface by C. Heywood (Durham and Oxford, UK)	xi

Section I. Visual Pathways

1. Developmental plasticity of photoreceptors B.E. Reese (Santa Barbara, CA, USA)	3
2. Morphology and physiology of primate M- and P-cells L.C.L. Silveira, C.A. Saito, B.B. Lee, J. Kremers, M. da Silva Filho, B.E. Kilavik, E.S. Yamada and V.H. Perry (Pará, Brazil; New York, NY, USA, Göttingen, and Tübingen, Germany and Southampton, UK)	21
3. Identifying corollary discharges for movement in the primate brain R.H. Wurtz and M.A. Sommer (Bethesda, MD, USA)	47
4. Visual awareness and the cerebellum: possible role of decorrelation control P. Dean, J. Porrill and J.V. Stone (Sheffield, UK)	61

Section II. Cortical Visual Systems

5. Some effects of cortical and callosal damage on conscious and unconscious processing of visual information and other sensory inputs G. Berlucchi (Verona, Italy)	79
6. Consciousness absent and present: a neurophysiological exploration E.T. Rolls (Oxford, UK)	95
7. Rapid serial visual presentation for the determination of neural selectivity in area STSa P. Földiák, D. Xiao, C. Keysers, R. Edwards and D.I. Perrett (St. Andrews, UK)	107

8. Cortical interactions in vision and awareness: hierarchies in reverse C.-H. Juan, G. Campana and V. Walsh (Nashville, TN, USA, Oxford and London, UK and Padova, Italy)	117
9. Two distinct modes of control for object-directed action M.A. Goodale, D.A. Westwood and A.D. Milner (London, ON and Halifax, NS, Canada and Stockton-on-Tees, UK)	131
 Section III. Perception and Attention
10. Color contrast: a contributory mechanism to color constancy A. Hurlbert and K. Wolf (Newcastle upon Tyne, UK)	147
11. The primacy of chromatic edge processing in normal and cerebrally achromatopsic subjects R.W. Kentridge, G.G. Cole and C.A. Heywood (Durham, UK)	161
12. Neuroimaging studies of attention and the processing of emotion-laden stimuli L. Pessoa and L.G. Ungerleider (Bethesda, MD, USA)	171
13. Selective visual attention, visual search and visual awareness C.M. Butter (Ann Arbor, MI, USA)	183
14. First-order and second-order motion: neurological evidence for neuroanatomically distinct systems L.M. Vaina and S. Soloviev (Boston, MA, USA)	197
15. Reaching between obstacles in spatial neglect and visual extinction A.D. Milner and R.D. McIntosh (Stockton-on-Tees, UK)	213
 Section IV. Blindsight and Visual Awareness
16. Roots of blindsight L. Weiskrantz (Oxford, UK)	229
17. 'Double-blindsight' revealed through the processing of color and luminance contrast defined motion signals J.L. Barbur (London, UK)	243
18. Stimulus cueing in blindsight A. Cowey and P. Stoerig (Oxford, UK and Düsseldorf, Germany)	261
19. Visually guided behavior after V1 lesions in young and adult monkeys and its relation to blindsight in humans C.G. Gross, T. Moore and H.R. Rodman (Princeton, NJ and Atlanta, GA, USA)	279

20. Is blindsight in normals akin to blindsight following brain damage? C.A. Marzi, A. Minelli and S. Savazzi (Verona, Italy)	295
21. Auras and other hallucinations: windows on the visual brain F. Wilkinson (Toronto, ON, Canada)	305
22. Theories of visual awareness A. Zeman (Edinburgh, UK)	321
