

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	1
PART ONE: 1850–1890
1 “Hot Flannels, Hot Teas, and a Great Deal of Care”: Emily Hawley Gillespie and Sarah Gillespie, 1858–1888	11
2 An Overview of Nineteenth-Century Caregiving	37
3 “Tried at the Quilting Bees”: Conflicts between “Old Ladies” and Aspiring Professionals	68
PART TWO: 1890–1940
4 A “Terrible and Exhausting” Struggle: Martha Shaw Farnsworth, 1890–1924	85
5 “Just as You Direct”: Caregiver Translations of Medical Authority	119
6 Negotiating Public Health Directives: Poor New Yorkers at the Turn of the Century	150

7	Caregiving during the Great Depression: Mothers Seeking Children's Health Care and American Indians Encountering Public Health Nurses	177
8	"Very Dear to My Heart": Confronting Labels of Feeble-mindedness and Epilepsy	201
9	"Like Ordinary Hearing Children": Raising Offspring according to Oralists Dictates	239
	Conclusion: The Uses of the Past	251
	Notes	277
	Index	321