CONTENTS

Contributors .......................................................... ix

Introduction: Applying Cognitive Methods With
Clinical Populations ................................................... 3
Amy Wenzel and David C. Rubin

I. The Stroop Task ....................................................... 11

Chapter 1. The Stroop Task: Indirectly Measuring Concept Activation ...................................................... 13
Colin MacLeod and Colin MacLeod

Chapter 2. The Stroop Task in Cognitive Research .......... 17
Colin M. MacLeod

Chapter 3. The Stroop Task in Clinical Research ............ 41
Colin MacLeod

II. Selective Attention Tasks ....................................... 63

Chapter 4. Selective Attention Tasks in Clinical and Cognitive Research .............................................. 65
Jenny Yiend, Andrew Mathews, and Nelson Cowan

Chapter 5. Selective Attention Tasks in Cognitive Research ................................................................. 73
Nelson Cowan