

Table of Contents

Table of Contents	I
List of Figures and Tables	V

Chapter I – Introduction

1 Research Problem.....	1
1.1 Practical Background of the Problem.....	3
1.2 Theoretical Background of the Problem.....	6
2 Research Objective, Scientific Approach, and Research Design	10
2.1 Research Objective.....	10
2.2 Scientific Approach.....	11
2.3 Research Design.....	14
3 Definition and Description of Key Concepts.....	17
3.1 e-Strategy	17
3.2 Creating and Sustaining Competitive Advantage.....	18
3.3 A New Economy View (NEV).....	23
4 Outline of the Dissertation.....	26

Chapter II - Creating and Sustaining Competitive Advantage in the New Economy

1 Overview: The Changing Nature of Competition in the New Economy	29
1.1 Understanding and Defining the New Economy.....	30
1.2 An Enacted View of the New Economy: Constituent Trends and Forces.....	32
1.2.1 Informatization and Digitization: From Atoms to Bits.....	33
1.2.2 The Internet: Ubiquitous Connectivity and Networks Everywhere.....	42
1.2.3 The Global Village: Business Anywhere and Anytime.....	52
1.3 Summary and Conclusion: The New Economy is Digital and Soft, Connected, and a 'Global Village'	58
2 Review: Traditional Concepts of Competitive Advantage	61
2.1 The Market-Based View (MBV): Industry Structure and Firm Position as Sources of Competitive Advantage	62
2.1.1 Porter's Five Forces Framework of Industry Analysis (Porter, 1980, 1985).....	62
2.1.2 Porter's Generic Strategies (Porter, 1980).....	64
2.1.3 Porter's Value Chain (Porter, 1985).....	65
2.1.4 Appraisal and Critique of the MBV	67
2.1.4.1 Discussion of the Applicability and Usefulness of Traditional MBV Concepts in the New Economy	68
2.1.4.2 Conclusion: Shortcomings of the MBV and Implications for Competitive Advantage in the New Economy	83

2.2	The Resource-Based View (RBV): Firm Resources, Capabilities, and Core Competencies as Sources of Competitive Advantage	85
2.2.1	Firm Resources, Capabilities and Core Competencies	86
2.2.2	Appraisal and Critique of the RBV	89
2.2.2.1	Discussion of the Applicability and Usefulness of the RBV in the New Economy	90
2.2.2.2	Conclusion: Shortcomings of the RBV and Implications for Competitive Advantage in the New Economy	95
2.3	Concluding Remarks	97

Chapter III – The e-Strategy Framework

1	New View: Introduction to the e-Strategy Framework	101
1.1	The New Economy View (NEV): Value Patterns as Sources of Competitive Advantage	102
1.2	The Four Dimensions of Competitive Advantage	105
1.2.1	Structural Dimension – “Value is in Networks”	105
1.2.2	Spatial Dimension – “Value is in Anywhere Presence”	110
1.2.3	Temporal Dimension – “Value is in Anytime Presence”	112
1.2.4	Material Dimension – “Value is in Intangibles”	114
1.2.5	The Four Dimensions of the e-Strategy Framework	116
2	The Structural Dimension	118
2.1	Links: The Connectedness of the Focal Firm	121
2.1.1	Reflection	122
2.1.1.1	Transaction Cost Economics	123
2.1.1.2	The Strategic Network Perspective	126
2.1.1.3	Formulation of the 1 st e-Strategy Principle	129
2.1.2	Applications and Illustrations – ‘Leverage Links!’	130
	• Orchestrators: Concentrate on the Core and Connect	131
	Case Example Nike	136
	• Strategic Partnerships: Pool Resources with Allies and Collaborate with Complementors	137
	Case Example KPMG and CISCO	144
	• Extended Enterprise: Co-opt Customer Competence	146
	Case Example Microsoft	149
	⇒ Summary	151
2.2	Nodes: The Embeddedness of the Focal Firm	152
2.2.1	Reflection	152
2.2.1.1	Social Network Theory	153
2.2.1.2	Formulation of the 2 nd e-Strategy Principle	155
2.2.2	Applications and Illustrations – ‘Be a Hub!’	157
	• Virtual Integrators: Configuring the Provider Network for Centrality	158
	Case Example Nike	160
	• Infomediaries: Infomediate Buyer and Seller Relationships	161
	Case Example LetsBuyIt.com	164
	• Market-Makers: Aggregate Supply and Demand in an e-Marketplace	166
	Case Example MyAircraft	169
	⇒ Summary	171
2.3	Wrap Up – Structural Dimension	172

3	The Spatial Dimension	174
3.1	Size: The Scale and Scope of the Value Web	174
3.1.1	Reflection	175
3.1.1.1	Supply-Side Advantages of Size	175
3.1.1.2	Demand-Side Advantages of Size	177
3.1.1.3	Formulation of the 3 rd e-Strategy Principle	178
3.1.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Grow Big!'	181
	• Open Source: Give It Away to Attract a Virtual Work Force	182
	Case Example OpenOffice.org	186
	• Affiliate Networks: Build a Virtual Marketing and Sales Force	187
	Case Example Amazon	189
	• Free Products and Services: Give It Away to Build a Large User Base	191
	Case Example Netscape	194
	• Viral Marketing: Turn Customers into a Sales Force	196
	Case Example Hotmail	198
	⇒ Summary	200
3.2	Distance: The Span of Links	201
3.2.1	Reflection	201
3.2.1.1	The Advantages and Disadvantages of Distance	202
3.2.1.2	Formulation of the 4 th e-Strategy Principle	204
3.2.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Grow Close!'	206
	• Customization: Partnership Sourcing and One-to-One Marketing Relationships	207
	Case Example MyYahoo!	213
	• Disintermediation: Direct Sourcing and Direct Selling	215
	Case Example Dell	218
	⇒ Summary	219
3.3	Wrap Up – Spatial Dimension	221
4	The Temporal Dimension	223
4.1	Duration: The Length of a Relationship	223
4.1.1	Reflection	224
4.1.1.1	Efficiency and Effectiveness Advantages of Relational Exchanges	225
4.1.1.2	Formulation of the 5 th e-Strategy Principle	228
4.1.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Reinforce Relationships!'	231
	• Learning Relationships: Building Relationship Capital with Providers	232
	• Loyalty Programs: Locking In Customers	234
	Case Example American Airlines	238
	⇒ Summary	239
4.2	Timing: The Coincidence of Events	241
4.2.1	Reflection	242
4.2.1.1	Advantages and Disadvantages of Timing Events	242
4.2.1.2	Formulation of the 6 th e-Strategy Principle	245
4.2.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Be Prepared!'	247
	• Adaptive Enterprise: Sense and Respond	248
	Case Example mySAP.com	251
	• Real-Time Enterprise: Creating Customer Convenience	253
	Case Example FedEx	257
	⇒ Summary	259
4.3	Wrap Up – Temporal Dimension	260

5	The Material Dimension	262
5.1	Content: The Material Configuration of the Network	263
5.1.1	Reflection	263
5.1.1.1	The Advantages of Intangibles.....	264
5.1.1.2	Formulation of the 7 th e-Strategy Principle.....	268
5.1.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Go Soft!'	270
	• Virtual Communities: Seizing the Power of Online Relationships	271
	Case Example iVillage	275
	➤ Summary	277
5.2	Form: The Representation and Packaging of Resources	278
5.2.1	Reflection	279
5.2.1.1	The Value Creation Potential of Digital Resources	280
5.2.1.2	Formulation of the 8 th e-Strategy Principle	282
5.2.2	Applications and Illustrations – 'Go Digital!'	285
	• Digital Enterprise: Clicks-and-Mortar and Extended 'Infostructure'	286
	Case Example Charles Schwab	293
	➤ Summary	296
5.3	Wrap Up – Material Dimension	297

Chapter IV – Integrating the Four Dimensions of the e-Strategy Framework

1	Completing the e-Strategy Framework.....	299
2	Putting the e-Strategy Framework into Practice	303

Chapter V – Conclusion, Discussion, and Implications

1	Conclusion.....	311
2	Discussion	312
2.1	Critique of the NEV of Competitive Advantage and Comparison with the MBV and RBV	312
2.2	Contribution of the e-Strategy Framework.....	316
2.3	Limitations of the e-Strategy Framework.....	319
3	Implications.....	320

Bibliography	VII
---------------------------	------------

List of Figures and Tables

Figures

figure 1-1:	Paradigms and Dominating Perspectives in Social Science	13
figure 1-2:	The NEV as a Meta-Perspective	19
figure 1-3:	Overview of the Dissertation	27
figure 2-1:	Five Forces: Summary of the Key Drivers	63
figure 2-2:	The Value Chain and Value System	66
figure 3-1:	Constitutive Dimensions of Competitive Advantage	105
figure 3-2:	The Structural Dimension	108
figure 3-3:	The Basic Model of the Value Web	109
figure 3-4:	The Spatial Dimension	112
figure 3-5:	The Temporal Dimension	114
figure 3-6:	The Material Dimension	116
figure 3-7:	The Four Dimensions of the e-Strategy Framework	117
figure 3-8:	The Outsourcing Decision of an Orchestrator	135
figure 3-9:	The Benefit of Collaborating with a Complementor	143
figure 3-10:	Supply-Demand Network Archetypes and e-Strategy Applications	158
figure 3-11:	The Seller-Broker	163
figure 3-12:	The e-Marketplace as the e-Strategy Application of a Market-Maker	168
figure 3-13:	“The Aviation Industry’s Premier B2B Exchange”: The New e-Marketplace of MyAircraft and AirNewco	170
figure 3-14:	The Virtuous Cycle of Product Adoption to Grow the User Base	195
figure 3-15:	'Grow Close!' e-Strategy Applications	207
figure 3-16:	Direct Sourcing and Direct Selling in the PC Industry	217
figure 3-17:	The Building of Relationship Capital and Switching Costs	235
figure 3-18:	Different Perspectives on the Timing of Events	244
figure 3-19:	Important Instances of Customer Transactions and Interactions in the Sales-Cycle	255
figure 4-1:	The Logic Behind the e-Strategy Framework	300
figure 4-2:	Summary and Overview of the e-Strategy Framework as a Whole	301
figure 4-3:	The e-Strategy Methodology	304

Tables

table 1-1:	Summary of the Definitions of Competitive Advantage in the MBV, RBV, and SBV.....	23
table 2-1:	Overview and Summary of the Defining Trends and Forces in the New Economy and the Respective New Sources of Value for Competitive Advantage.....	59
table 2-2:	Generic Strategies	65
table 2-3:	Summary and Overview of the Critique Regarding Porter's Frameworks	85
table 2-4:	Sources of Competitive Advantage in the RBV	88
table 2-5:	Summary and Overview of the Critique Regarding the RBV Concepts.....	97
table 3-1:	Potential Advantages of Interorganizational Relationships.....	129
table 3-2:	Competitive Advantage of Central Nodes	155
table 3-3:	Seizing the Value Pattern "Value is in Networks"	173
table 3-4:	Advantages of Size.....	178
table 3-5:	Advantages of Proximity	204
table 3-6:	Seizing the Value Pattern "Value is in Anywhere Presence"	222
table 3-7:	Advantages of Relational Exchanges.....	228
table 3-8:	Seizing the Value Pattern "Value is in Anytime Presence".....	261
table 3-9:	The Superiority of Intangible Resources over Tangible Assets	267
table 3-10:	Types and Objectives of Various Virtual Communities	273
table 3-11:	The Advantages of Digital Resources.....	282
table 3-12:	Seizing the Value Pattern "Value is in Intangibles"	298
table 5-1:	Comparison of the Concepts of Competitive Advantage and Strategy in the Different Perspectives	316
table 5-2:	The Eight e-Strategy Principles Managers Should Keep in Mind.....	322