

Contents

Foreword	vii
1. Aims and Objectives	1
Introduction	1
Project focus	2
Study areas and design	3
Reducing working time: some assumptions and premises	4
2. Key Factors in Working Time Reductions	6
Introduction	6
Productivity	7
Occupational changes	9
Industrial relations	13
Labour market: the 'flexible firm'	16
Working time trends and developments	23
Summary	25
3. Trade Unions, Collective Bargaining, Flexibility and Reduced Working Time	28
Introduction	28
The TUC and shorter working time	29
Bargaining working time	30
New working patterns	32
Temporary work	34
The 'flexible firm' debate and trade unions	35
Working time developments: what price change?	36
Trends in reduced working time	38
Conclusions	39

4. Case studies of Work Re-organization and Time Innovations	45
Introduction	45
Methodology	46
Case study 1: Five-crew shiftworking - A chemical company	47
Case study 2: Part-time working - A textile company	47
Case study 3: Harmonization - A pharmaceutical company	48
Case study 4: Flexible rostering - A study on the railways	49
Conclusions from case studies	50
5. Working Time Preferences	57
Introduction	57
Choosing time contracts	58
Desire for reduced hours	60
Time Use	66
Extra working hours	68
Which route to shorter hours?	68
6. Varying Hours - Part time Work, Job Sharing and Overtime	73
A Part time work	73
B Job sharing	84
C Overtime	89
7. Working Week or Working Life?	98
Working week preferences	98
Shorter hours, employment and productivity	102
Options and developments	102
Legislation	103
Holidays	104
Sabbaticals	105
8. Developing Approaches to Annual Hours	107
A Flexi-time	107
B Shiftwork innovations	109
C Annual hours contracts/annual time commitments	113
9. Conclusions	116
Working time options	117
Voluntary vs negotiated hours reductions	118
Future trends and directions - some possibilities	119
Select Bibliography	122
Appendix I - Survey Questionnaire	123
Appendix II - Survey Classification	132