

Content

List of exhibits	vi
List of abbreviations	ix
Part I: M&A APPROACH: INTRODUCTION	1
1. Background of the study	1
1.1 Topicality: Increasing Japanese M&A activity	3
1.2 Purpose of the study	8
2. Research methodology	12
2.1 Research approach	13
2.2 Research design	15
2.3 Sources of data	20

Part II: M&A APPROACH: EFFECT/OUTPUT FACTORS	25
3. Cancellation	25
3.1 Reasons for cancelled deals	28
3.1.1 Statistics of cancelled deals in M&A literature	28
3.1.2 Results from the survey questionnaire	31
3.2 Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A process	34
3.2.1 Acquisition strategy	34
3.2.1.1 Anglo-Saxon and Japanese acquisition strategies	38
3.2.1.2 Frictions during the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese acquisition strategy formulating phase	48
3.2.2 Due diligence (Search and screen, evaluation)	53
3.2.2.1 Anglo-Saxon and Japanese due diligence phase	55
3.2.2.2 Frictions during the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese due diligence phase	64
3.2.3 Negotiation	72
3.2.3.1 Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A negotiation phase	74
3.2.3.2 Frictions during the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A negotiation phase	76
4. Success and Failure	87
4.1 Reasons for successful and failed M&A deals	89
4.1.1 No clear cut yardsticks to measure successful and failed M&A transactions	89
4.1.2 Anglo-Saxon capital market perspective and Japanese constituents view of successful and failed M&A deals	92
4.1.2.1 Anglo-Saxon description of success and failure	95
4.1.2.2 Japanese description of success and failure	102
4.2 Last phase of the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A process	108
4.2.1 Fundamentals of integration process	108
4.2.2 Anglo-Saxon and Japanese integration process	113
4.2.2.1 The Anglo-Saxon post-acquisition management	115
4.2.2.2 The Japanese post-acquisition management	116
4.2.2.3 Frictions during the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese integration process	120

Part III: M&A APPROACH: CAUSE/INPUT FACTORS	127
5. Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A environment	127
5.1 Economic and financial M&A market	129
5.1.1 M&A boom years from 1985 - 1989	129
5.1.1.1 Financial buyouts (LBOs) in the USA	131
5.1.1.2 Japanese cross-border mega deals in the USA due to cheap cost of capital?	133
5.1.1.3 Raising capital for M&A financing and hedging instruments	139
5.1.2 M&A decline years from 1990 - 1992	145
5.1.2.1 Restricted capital availability	146
5.1.2.2 Divestitures and initial public offerings in the USA	150
5.1.2.3 Japanese investments in Europe in 1991 and a sharp world-wide decrease of Japanese M&A activity in 1992	154
5.1.3 The future of Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A activity	159
5.1.3.1 The future perspective of Anglo-Saxon M&A transactions	160
5.1.3.2 The future perspective of Japanese M&A transactions	165
5.2 Politics influencing M&A	174
5.2.1 Political environment in the United States	174
5.2.1.1 Adverse relationship between government and business	175
5.2.1.2 US presidential elections 1992	177
5.2.1.3 Japan bashing and the "Buy American"- campaign	180
5.2.2 Political environment in Japan	182
5.2.2.1 The command economy: Japan Inc.	183
5.2.2.2 Hurdles and restrictions in the Japanese market	187
5.3 Governmental and legal M&A framework	191
5.3.1 United States: Governmental interference in M&A	191
5.3.1.1 Anti-trust: Mergers guidelines and Hart-Scott-Rodino	192
5.3.1.2 Defence: Exon-Florio	195
5.3.1.3 Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)	197
5.3.2 Japan: Governmental interference in M&A	200
5.3.2.1 Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Control Act	202
5.3.2.2 Anti-trust: Anti-Monopoly Act Law	203

6. Cultural background of Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A players	205
6.1 Historical background	208
6.1.1 American historical background	208
6.1.1.1 Colonial foundation: The settling down of the English in America	209
6.1.1.2 The American Proposition / Declaration of Independence / Constitution	211
6.1.2 Japanese historical background	213
6.1.2.1 History of Japan: 4th to 19th century: Focus on warriors (shogun) and the Tokugawa feudalism	213
6.1.2.2 The Meiji era (1868 - 1912): Rapid modernization	215
6.2 The origin of business and management system	218
6.2.1 The origin of American business and management system	218
6.2.1.1 The supremacy of individualism	219
6.2.1.2 Ideology of rights - the institution of private property - the private law of contract	221
6.2.1.3 Competition and the "laissez-faire" economy	224
6.2.2 The origin of Japanese business and management system	227
6.2.2.1 Confucian doctrines	228
6.2.2.2 Groupism and human relationships: ie, amae, giri and on	231
6.2.2.3 Capitalism and zaibatsu system	235
6.3 The development of business and management system	238
6.3.1 The development of American business and management system	238
6.3.1.1 Economic ideology: Shareholder approach	238
6.3.1.2 Business and management values: American business creed, role of profit and performance-based wage system	243
6.3.1.3 Decision making process: Top-down	247
6.3.2 The development of Japanese business and management system	249
6.3.2.1 Economic ideology: Stakeholder approach	250
6.3.2.2 Business and management values: Corporate growth, lifetime employment and seniority-based wage system	256
6.3.2.3 Decision making process: By consensus	261

Part IV: M&A APPROACH: CONCLUSIONS	265
7. Conclusions for Continental European firms and universal banks	265
7.1 Global and integrated view of the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A approach	266
7.2 Conclusions for Continental European firms	268
7.3 Conclusions for Continental European universal banks	280
7.4 Future tendency of the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese M&A approach (outlook)	288
Appendices	293
1. Survey questionnaire	293
2. Anglo-Saxon and Japanese cost of capital comparison	297
3. Irrelevance theory of Modigliani/Miller	302
4. Forms of payment (cash, equity, debt)	303
5. Different debt instruments	306
6. Mezzanine financing	311
7. Anglo-Saxon and Japanese takeover procedure rules	312
8. Puritanism	334
9. Shintoism	336
10. Anglo-Saxon case studies:	337
Hanson Trust - Imperial Group	337
Time Inc. - Warner Communications	341
SmithKline Beckman Corp. - Beecham plc.	346
11. Japanese case studies:	353
Mitsubishi Estate Corp. - Rockefeller Group Inc.	353
Kyocera Corp. - AVX Corp.	359
Bridgestone - Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.	365
References	373
Curriculum Vitae	401

List of exhibits

Figure 1:	World-wide cross-border M&A transactions	3
Figure 2:	Different management philosophies	6
Figure 3:	Buy versus build strategies	9
Figure 4:	Research design	12
Figure 5:	Environmental factors	15
Figure 6:	Input/output model: mergers and acquisitions approach	17
Figure 7:	M&A experts in London: Interviews conducted in July and September 1991	20
Figure 8:	M&A experts and companies in New York: Interviews conducted in March and April 1992	21
Figure 9:	M&A experts in Basel, Zürich, Frankfurt, Düsseldorf and Paris: Interviews conducted in January and February 1993	22
Figure 10:	Companies participating in the survey	24
Figure 11:	The most critical success factors in managing acquisition(s)	26
Figure 12:	Sources of failed deals from 1985 - 1991	29
Figure 13:	Major frictions during the American and Japanese acquisition process	31
Figure 14:	Acquisition versus in-house development	34
Figure 15:	Major achievements through American and Japanese acquisitions	36
Figure 16:	Strategic reasons for acquisitions	41
Figure 17:	External influence patterns of Anglo-Saxon and Japanese acquisitions	49
Figure 18:	Risks in acquiring a company	54
Figure 19:	Types of information and likely sources	55
Figure 20:	Reasons for increasing interest in the shareholder value concept	59
Figure 21:	Net present value of an acquisition of company B by company A	61
Figure 22:	Focus on elements if acquisitions would have to be done again	64
Figure 23:	Outcome of American and Japanese M&A deals from 1988 - 1989	87
Figure 24:	Summary of major merger studies by chronical order from 1971 - 1980	90

Figure 25:	Description of post-acquisition failure	92
Figure 26:	Failures of Japanese M&A deals	107
Figure 27:	Characteristics of successful acquirers	108
Figure 28:	Most effective approach to integrate the acquired company	113
Figure 29:	Favourable changes to the management structure of an acquired company	114
Figure 30:	Greatest difficulties in the American and Japanese post-acquisition process	121
Figure 31:	Lack of institutional leadership	125
Figure 32:	Composition of total M&A announcements of Japanese companies	134
Figure 33:	Foreign acquisitions in Japan	134
Figure 34:	Barriers for foreign M&A buyers in Japan	135
Figure 35:	Japan - US top deals by value from 1988 - 1992	136
Figure 36:	Major errors in comparing cost of capital of two countries	136
Figure 37:	Reasons for M&A decline in the USA	150
Figure 38:	Japanese acquisitions of US companies from 1989 - 1991	154
Figure 39:	Reasons for decline of Japanese M&A activity in the USA	155
Figure 40:	Japanese acquisitions in Europe: Top 10 target sectors by deal value during the period 1988 - 1992	156
Figure 41:	Japanese acquisitions in Europe (1988 - 1992): Top 10 target countries	157
Figure 42:	Reasons for increase of UK cross-border M&A transactions	161
Figure 43:	Reasons for increasing Anglo-Saxon M&A activity in Europe	163
Figure 44:	Reasons for increasing Japanese investments in Europe	169
Figure 45:	Intra-Japanese M&A transactions for the period 1986 - 1990	171
Figure 46:	President Clinton's statements about industrial policy	176
Figure 47:	Japanese accusations of unfair trade practices of the United States	182
Figure 48:	National goals pursued by the Japanese government	184
Figure 49:	Inside mechanism of the Japanese market	186
Figure 50:	Trade barriers in Japan	189
Figure 51:	Revision of the anti-trust merger guidelines	194
Figure 52:	The aims of the Anti-Monopoly Act of 1947 in Japan	201
Figure 53:	Prior notification to the Fair Trade Commission	203
Figure 54:	Basic policies of the Emperor Meiji	216
Figure 55:	Most influential teachings of Confucianism on Japan	228

Figure 56:	Relationships in corporate life in Japan	229
Figure 57:	Reasons for shareholder orientation of Anglo-Saxon management	243
Figure 58:	The ownership structure of Japanese corporations in 1987	253
Figure 59:	Input/output model as an analysing instrument of the M&A approach	267
Figure 60:	Summary of types of public acquisitions made between 1981 and 1987	315
Figure 61:	Tender offer trends from 1986 to 1990	319
Figure 62:	Reasons for Mitsubishi Estate to acquire the Rockefeller Group	355