

---

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
1. The Marketing Environment in a Multicultural Society	1
Welcome to Multicultural America!	1
Chapter and Book Presentation Plan	2
More Diversity and Celebration of Differences	3
Technology Changes the Relative Costs of Mass Versus Direct and Interactive Media	10
The Twilight of Mass Markets, Mass Marketing, and Market Segmentation	13
Global Basis of Competition	15
What Is a Multicultural Society?	21
A New Philosophy of Marketing: Valuing Consumers by Sharing Consumer Values	23
Summary	29

2. Consumer Identity in a Multicultural Society	31
Consumption as Expression of Social Identity and Consumer Values	31
Marketing as Both Economic Exchange and Cultural Medium	34
The Significance of Media Institutions and Representations in a Multicultural Society	37
The American View of the Self and Social Identity	40
Mainstream American Culture and Subcultures in Multicultural America	47
Consumer Identities as Subcultures	49
Summary	54
3. Marketing in a Multicultural Environment	57
The Border Mentality and Transmigration	58
Marketing Shift #1: From Long-Term Profitability to Shared Interests	61
Marketing Shift #2: From Niche Marketing to Matrix Market Planning	64
Marketing Shift #3: From Mass Markets to Mass Choices	70
Marketing Shift #4: From Market Segmentation to Market Identification	74
Marketing Shift #5: From Brand Managers to Market Specialists	76
Marketing Shift #6: From Mass Communication to Consumer Dialogue and Organization Contact Points	77
Marketing Shift #7: From Extensive to Intensive Market Information	80
Marketing Strategies for a Multicultural Setting	82
Ethical Dilemmas in Multicultural Marketing	87
Summary	89
4. Mature Americans: Fastest Growing Subculture	91
Who Are the Mature Americans?	93
The Gulag of Older Americans	94
Economic and Political Strength; Cultural Invisibility	98
Being Old in a Youth-Oriented Society	103
Media Usage: Connections to the World Outside Family	112
Activist Consumers	115

Communication and Shopping Styles of Older Consumers	116
Summary	120
5. U.S. Latinos: The Largest Ethnic Subculture	123
Marye C. Tharp With Ernest W. Bromley
What Does Hispanic or Latino Mean?	125
Origins of U.S. Latinos	127
Language Use and Acculturation Among U.S. Latinos	129
Size and Shape of the U.S. Hispanic Population	132
Family, Church, and Language as Symbols of Hispanic Values	136
Latino Media Images, Usage, and Availability	144
Search Strategies and Buying Preferences of Latino Consumers	154
Summary	162
6. African Americans: Ethnic Roots, Cultural Diversity	165
Jerome D. Williams and Marye C. Tharp
The Myth of Race, the Reality of Racial Prejudice	165
African American Diversity	170
Ethnic Identity and African American Cultural Values	179
African Americans as Consumers	187
Information Sources and Media Preferences	199
Caveat Marketer	210
Summary	211
7. Gay Americans: Sexual Orientation as Community Boundary	213
Being Gay or Lesbian in a Straight World: Identity Issues	214
What Is the Demographic Profile of the Gay Market?	217
Gay Geography, Lifestyles, and Politics	221
Diverse Gay Communities, United in Favor of Gay Rights	225
The Media: Importance of Endorsement	226
Marketing Experiences and Response of Gay Consumers	231
Summary	241
8. Asian Americans: In Search of the American Dream	243
Satomi Furuichi, Carrie La Ferle, Wei-Na Lee, and Marye C. Tharp
Asian America: Diversity of Cultures, Resources, and Experiences	244

Continued Traditions	253
Bridging Two Cultures	258
Asian American Sources of Information and Media Patterns	264
Summary	281
9. Multicultural Markets and Marketing: Future Directions	283
A Model of the Evolution of Consumer Subcultures in the United States	284
Evolving Consumer Subcultures in the United States	289
Marketing Opportunities in Multicultural Settings Outside the United States	310
Summary	312
References	315
Index	361
About the Authors	395