

CONTENTS

Contributing Authors Acknowledgements

ix
xiii

1 The Study of Bureaucracy

Neil Garston

1

Introduction

1

Defining Bureaucracy

3

The History of Bureaucracy

6

Methodologies/Paradigms

9

Current Problems and the Extent of Bureaucracy

PART I: THE NATURE OF BUREAUCRACY

2 The Behavior of Corporate Bureaucrats

25

Rowena Pecchenino

Introduction

25

The Perfect Information Firm

26

Principal-Agent Theory

26

Team Theory

29

Asset Specificity

31

Incomplete Contracts

32

Hierarchy	33
Caveats, Conundrums and Conjectures	34
3 Bureaucracy and Class Marxism	39
Paresh Chattopadhyay
Defining the Issues	39
Bureaucracy and Class	41
Bureaucracy and Capitalist Production	42
Bureaucracy and Bolshevism	48
Bureaucrats as "Active Capitalists"	53
4 The Emergence and Functions of Managerial and Clerical Personnel in Marx's Capital	61
Gérard Duménil and Dominique Lévy
Introduction	61
Ownership and Management	63
Capitalist Functions: Management in Marx's Words	64
The Transfer of Capitalist Functions to the Business Staff	70
Business Management and the Distinction Between Productive and Unproductive Labor	71
The Business Staff Within the Pattern of Class Relations	75
5 An Institutional Theory of Bureaucracy: Organizations and Technology	83
Thomas R. DeGregori and Randal J. Thompson assisted by Deborah Shepherd
Bureaucracy and Institutionalism	83
The Veblen-Ayres Dichotomy	84
Technology as a Problem-Solving Process	85
Valuational Processes of Technology	86
The Technological and Ceremonial Aspects	87
Methods of Verification	89
Organizations: Coordination of Knowledge, Skills, and Materials	89
Modern Bureaucracies	91
Self-Sustaining Replicative Systems	92
Signs Versus Signals	93
The Spoils System and Emerging Complex Technologies	94
Bureaucracies-Reflected Model of Manufacturing	95
When Organizations Become Institutions	96
Resistance to Innovation and Change	97
Need to Balance Order and Disorder	98
Part II: THE INTERNAL FUNCTIONING OF BUREAUCRACY
6 A Model of Corporate Organizational Structure	103
Martin J. Beckmann
Organization and the Division of Labor	103

The Span of Control and Returns to Scale	104
Loss of Control and Hierarchical Structure	106
The Advantages of Organization	111
7 Public Sector Bureaucracy: The Neoclassical Structure	113
P. M. Jackson
Introduction	113
The Economics of Bureaucracy	114
Niskanen's Model of Bureaucracy	115
Moral Hazard and Bureaucratic Behavior	118
X-Inefficiency	122
The Contract Bureaucracy	124
Conclusion	128
8 Bureaucracy/Technocracy, Market Structure and Behavior: An Institutionalists' View	131
John R. Munkirs
Introduction	131
Monopolistic/Imperfect Competition	132
Administered Prices and the Visible Hand	136
The Separation of Ownership and Control	140
Private Sector Economic Planning	143
Technogarchs and the Veblenian Dichotomy	146
Conclusion	150
 Part III: BUREAUCRACY AND SOCIETY
9 The Economic Functions of Clerical and Managerial Personnel: A Historical Perspective	155
Gérard Duménil and Dominique Lévy
Introduction	155
Historical Tendencies	156
Macroeconomic (In)stability	170
Conclusion: Laws of Motion, Evolution, and Crises	185
10 Bureaucracy and Society: An Institutional Perspective	189
Randal Joy Thompson
Introduction	189
Institutionalist Framework for Looking at Bureaucracy in Relation to Society	191
Viewing Bureaucracy in Contemporary Society	193
Current Changes in Society	195
Changes in Bureaucracy Resulting from High-Technology Tier	196
Institutionalist Interpretation of Current Economic Problems	197
Proposed Institutional Reforms	198
Designs for Bureaucracies	200

Scientific Thought: Bureaucratic Processes and the Institutional Approach	200
11 Communist Bureaucrats and the Transition to the Market Economy	205
Adam M. Pilarski
Introduction	205
Expected Behavior of Bureaucrats	209
What Really Happened?	213
Summary	218
12 Paradigms, Insights, and Problems	223
Neil Garston
The Future of the Field	223
Common Ground	228
Conclusion of Conclusions	234
Index	237