

CONTENTS

Notes on contributors	vii
Introduction: Why the Communication Age? JAMES LULL	1
SECTION ONE
The foundations of culture	7
1 Culture of the mind: on the origins of meaning and emotion EDWARD C. STEWART	9
2 Rethinking the foundations of culture EDUARDO NEIVA	31
3 Thinking about culture in a global ecumene ULF HANNERZ	54
SECTION TWO
Making sense of culture	73
4 From ways of life to lifestyle: rethinking culture as ideology and sensibility DAVID C. CHANEY	75
5 The question of cultural gender MIRJA LIIKKANEN	89

CONTENTS

6 Cultural fronts: towards a dialogical understanding of contemporary cultures	106
JORGE A. GONZÁLEZ
7 Superculture for the Communication Age	132
JAMES LULL
SECTION THREE
Contemporary cultural forms	165
8 Cultural theory in popular culture and media spectacles	167
MICHAEL REAL
9 Visual culture	179
PAUL MESSARIS
10 Star culture	193
STEPHEN HINERMAN
11 Computers, the Internet, and virtual cultures	212
STEVE JONES AND STEPHANIE KUCKER
Index	226