

Contents

Foreword xiii

1. What Is Lifestyle Marketing?	1
Planning and Execution	3
What It Accomplished	4
Another Historic Campaign	6
A Message Too Clear to Miss	7
A Resilient and Adaptable Approach	8
Why Lifestyle Marketing Succeeds	9
We're Not Talking Theory	10
Cause-Related Sponsorships: A Growing Trend	12
Corporate Involvement in Culture	13
How Do You Get Started?	15
Zero In on Your Customer Base	15
Taking It to Their Doorsteps	16
Beyond Public Relations	17
Not Really Philanthropy Either	18
Return on Investment	19
Involvement at the Community Level	19
Maximizing Program Results	21
Maximizing Payback	22
Being True to Your Concerns	23
Sneakers and Prisoners	24
The Boundaries Are Blurring	24

The Trends Are Clear	25
It Can Work for You	25
Make a Statement	27
An Historic Olympic Sponsorship	27
A Brief Fable	30

2. The Coming of Age of the U.S. Consumer 35

The Pause That Reflected	36
The Period of Recovery	37
Not All Happiness	38
Media Shifts Its Face	39
Network TV and Advertising	40
Out of the Skinner Box	42
Think Small	43
Exit the Cleavers	44
The Dialogue Begins	44
Social Upheaval Comes Home	45
The Marketplace Segments	46
The Melting Pot Boils Dry	48
New Marketing Opportunities	49
Enter the New Partnership	50
The Story of Ben & Jerry's	51

3. Connecting with Your Customers 55

Slowing Growth	56
An Aging Population	57
The Marketplace Fragments	57
Lifestyles Are the Result	59
Finding Your Customers	60
Delving Deeper to Sell More	62
Know Your Target Group	63
The Power to Elect a President	70

4. Finding the Sponsorship That's Right for You 73

Planning Your Involvement	74
Making the Right Choice	76
Coming on Board	77
Create a Community Map	78
The Interviewing Process	81
Conducting Secondary Research	82
Getting Involved	83

Should You Create Something?	84
The Story of the Sarah Vaughan Jazz Festival	85
Sports: A Special Problem	88
Make a Relative Value Assessment	90
Comparing Different Events	94
On to the Plan	95
The American Express Story—A Talk with Warner Canto	96

5. Creating a Winning Program 101

Setting Your Goals	102
A Program Drives Your Success	103
You Need Goals	103
Uses versus Objectives	104
The Situation	105
Focusing on the Target Audience	106
Program Elements and Strategies	106
Timetable and Budget	108
Plot the Creative Side	108
Building the Team	110
Make a Written Agreement	110
Reaching Agreement	120
Level of Involvement	121
A Word on Execution	122
Case Study: The Olympics	122

6. Project Leverage: Extending Your Program for Maximum Results 127

The Sponsorship as Catalyst	131
Three Vital Aspects	132
Meeting Your Partner's Needs	133
Absolut Markets in a Crowded Category	135
A Closer Look at Snapple	136
How Beehive Began with $5000	137
The Microbrewer's Tale	138
The Investment House and the Symphony	138
Brinks Home Security Leverages Exposure	139
Tone Soap	139
BMW Uses Triathlon to Target Women	140
Charcoal Tries Festival Sponsorship	140
Pepperidge Farm Ties into Circus Tour	141
Sherwin-Williams Sponsors Baseball	141
Korbel Joins with Cycling Sponsorship	142

Omega Partners with Sailboat Racing	143
Old Spice Sponsors Beach Volleyball	143
Taking It Higher	144
Barbara Paddock, Program Extender Extraordinaire	144
7. Balancing Your Portfolio with Additional Programs		149
Starting on a Limited Budget	151
How Chemical Bank Does It	153
A Look at How It Is Done	154
In Conclusion	178
8. Keeping Accountable: How to Determine and Document the Success of Your Lifestyle Marketing		179
Where to Begin?	181
Overstressing the Quantitative	181
Assessing How People Feel	182
Measuring Change	182
Where Do You Begin?	184
Confounding Factors	186
The Goal	187
Measuring Media Coverage	187
Keep on Monitoring	188
Using Surveys to Shape and Refine	189
Confounding Factors over Time	190
Measuring Sales Impact	190
The Next Step	191
A Bank Builds Ties to Its Community	192
9. For Fundraisers, a Match Made in Heaven		195
What Do Companies Want to Know?	196
Two Philosophies	198
Conducting Research	202
Call Them	204
Category B Proposals	204
Offering Value	206
Where to Mail It	230
Why a Proposal?	231
Pricing Your Proposal	231
Building in Flexibility	233
What Should Your Proposal Include?	233

10. The New Partnership 235

Talking Trends 238

The Role of Technology 241

Measurement, Once and for All 243

Where Is All This Heading? 244

As the Century Draws to a Close 246

Readings 249

Index 259