

Contents

Abbreviations
Acknowledgements
Introduction	1
1 Karl Marx and the Discovery of the Proletariat	15
Marx and Revolution	17
The Evolution of Marx's Thought	19
Changes in Marx's Thought	26
Marx's 'Discovery' of the Proletariat	31
2 Marx and the Proletariat: 1848 and After	46
Marx's pre-1848 Conception of the Proletariat	49
Historical Inevitability	56
Marx's Theory of Crisis	61
The Setback of 1848 and its Consequences	68
3 Georg Lukács and Orthodoxy	76
Philosophy and Politics	76
The Emergence of Orthodoxy	77
Theory and Practice	81
The Constituent Parts of Orthodoxy	84
Orthodoxy, Evolution and Revolution	87
By Contrast: Lukács	91
4 Lukács and German Sociology	95
The Influence of German Sociology	97
Lukács' Critique of German Sociology	98
Lukács' Marxism	107
Influences: Ferdinand Tönnies and Communitarity	109
Influences: Georg Simmel and Alienation	114

5 Alienation, Reification, and Commodity Fetishism	125
Theory of Reification	126
Alienation and Ideology	129
Reification and Ideology	134
Lukács: Political Influences	141
Lukács and the Proletariat	144
6 Lukács, Revolution and the Party	155
Totality	156
The Proletariat	162
The Party	169
Conclusion	182
Notes and References	186
Bibliography	220
Index	256