

Contents

About the authors	8
Foreword	9
1 Introduction	11
The changing workforce	11
The dual-earner family	12
The traditional male work ethic	13
Why the workplace has to change	14
2 Stress and coping at work	19
Occupational stress and the male model of work	19
Work overload: long hours and the workaholic syndrome	22
Schedule incompatibility and inflexibility	24
Spillover	25
How do people cope?	28
How can organisations help?	33
3 Issues in career development	36
Preparing for a dual-career relationship	36
Parenting, careers and mobility	45
The stress of job mobility and relocation	50
How can organisations help?	54
4 Managing transitions: parenthood	57
The transition to parenthood	57
Dilemmas and issues for new parents	59
Informal policies: an example of good practice	68
Implications for organisations	70

5 Workers have families too 74

Time and energy	74
Conflicting demands	75
Effects on children	77
Childcare – who is responsible?	79
Who cares for the children when both parents are at work?		81
Who stays at home in a crisis?	84
Care of elderly parents and other relatives		87
What can organisations do?	88

6 Working together 96

Working together in the home	96
The concept of equity	100
Working together generating family income	102
Advantages of an egalitarian dual-career marriage		106
Men and women in organisations	108
How gender stereotypes cause misunderstandings at work	110
Sexuality and sexual harassment	112
What can organisations do?	114

7 Looking at alternatives 119

Alternative working arrangements	120
Reducing working hours	124
Easing the transition to parenthood	126

8 Training and development 132

Management training	132
Training which anticipates work/family issues		133
Skills for managing work and family	135
Conclusion	156

9 Changing organisations 158

Challenging the male model of work	159
Location and relocation	160
Opportunities for women	162
Wider societal changes and organisational policies		167

Childcare and social policy	171
Equal opportunities at work and at home	173
Appendix	176
Index	180