

CONTENTS

List of Figures	7
List of Tables	8
The Cranfield Management Research Series	11
Acknowledgements	13
1. Development in Human Resource Management in Europe — An Introduction Ariane Hegewisch and Chris Brewster, Cranfield School of Management, UK	15
2. A European Perspective on Human Resource Management Chris Brewster, Cranfield School of Management, UK and Franck Bournois, Université Jean Moulin, France	33
3. Is there a Latin Model in the Management of Human Resources? Jaime Filella, ESADE, Spain	55
4. Human Resource Aspects of Decentralisation and Devolution Jacob Hoogendoorn, Erasmus University, Rotterdam and Chris Brewster, Cranfield School of Management, UK	76
5. The Decentralisation of Pay Bargaining: European Comparisons Ariane Hegewisch, Cranfield School of Management, UK	86

- 6. Does Strategic Training Policy Exist? Some Evidence from Ten European Countries Len Holden, De Montfort University, UK and Yves Livian, ESC Lyon, France 101
- 7. The Challenge of Management Development in Western Europe in the 1990s Martin Hilb, University of St Gallen, Switzerland 117
- 8. Human Resource Management in Europe: Evidence from Ten Countries Chris Brewster, Cranfield School of Management, UK and Henrik Holt Larsen, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark 126
- 9. HR Management: An International Comparison Eduard Gaugler, Mannheim University, Germany 149
- 10. Human Resource Management in Greece Nancy Papalexandris, Athens University of Economics and Business, Greece 163
- 11. Changing Management Approaches to Employee Relations in Ireland Patrick Gunnigle, University of Limerick, Eire 181
- 12. Recruitment, Reform and the Italian Labour Market Stefano Folletti and Giampiero Giacomello of Associazione Industriali di Bologna and Jonathan Cooper, SAIS, Bologna 201
- 13. Current Perspectives on Human Resource Management in the United Kingdom David Guest, Birkbeck College, UK 210

LIST OF FIGURES

2.1	Position of the ten countries in relation to strategy formalisation and HRM input to strategy	40
2.2	A model for investigating Human Resource strategies: the European environment	50
7.1	Percentage of companies in ten European countries with a written personnel policy	118
7.2	The strategic and integrated management of Human Resources	120
7.3	The three-dimensional approach to Human Resource management	121
7.4	Evolution levels of international HRD	122
7.5	Example of a European HR portfolio	125
8.1	HRM and business strategy	130
8.2	Models of HRM	132
8.3	Relative integration ranking for ten European countries	137
8.4	Increase in line management responsibility in relation to having at least one-third of line managers trained (rankings)	140
8.5	Models of HRM: ten European countries	140
11.1	Atypical employment 1983–7	190
11.2	Atypical/typical employment 1983–7	190
11.3	Employment public sector and manufacturing	193
11.4	Strike activity 1980–90	197

LIST OF TABLES

1.1	European partner schools of the Price Waterhouse Cranfield Project	26
1.2	Response rates and number of responses by country	28
1.3	Distribution of responses by sector (% rounded to nearest whole figure)	29
1.4	Distribution of responses by number of employees per organisation	30
1.5	Respondents: percentage of organisations where the most senior personnel manager/director completed the questionnaire	31
2.1	Head of Human Resources function on main Board of Directors or equivalent	38
2.2	HR involvement in development of corporate strategy	39
2.3	Level of determination of basic pay	41
2.4	Trade union recognition	42
2.5	Change in union influence over previous three years	42
2.6	Information on financial performance to employees (% organisations giving information)	43
2.7	Use of atypical contracts (% organisations with more than 10% employees on following terms)	45
2.8	Proportion of annual salaries and wages currently spent on training (valid %)	47
2.9	Days' training per annum per manual employee, average (valid %)	47
3.1	The HR department staff	57
3.2	HR director's presence and influence	58

3.3	HR policy decisions at Headquarters	60
3.4	Responsibility for HR policy implementation	61
3.5	Recruitment by categories and methods	62
3.6	Methods for payment agreements	63
3.7	Proportion of income spent on training	65
3.8	Average number of days devoted to training	66
3.9	Trade union membership	67
3.10	Percentage of firms with stated policies	71
4.1	Devolvement of personnel functions — ten-country ranking	82
4.2	Devolvement and proportion of personnel functionaries	82
4.3	Devolvement and pay determination for manual workers	83
5.1	Determination of basic pay for manual workers in the UK (percentage of organisations)	89
5.2	Levels of basic pay determination in the private sector for manual workers (percentage of organisations)	89
5.3	Level at which pay policies are mainly determined within corporations and multi-site organisations (percentage of organisations)	91
5.4	Offer of increased pay and benefits in response to recruitment difficulties (percentage of organisations)	93
5.5	Variable pay: a steady rise (percentage of organisation)	94
5.6	Merit/performance-related pay (percentage of organisations)	96
5.7	Increase in line management responsibility for pay issues over the last three years (percentage of organisations)	97
6.1	Most popular measures to aid recruitment (percentage)	103
6.2	Increases in money spent on training per employee (allowing for inflation) over the last three years	103
6.3	Proportion of annual wages and salaries spent on training (percentages)	104
6.4	Organisations that don't know how much they spend on training (percentages)	104

6.5	Average number of days training (percentage of organisations)	105
6.6	Do you systematically analyse employee training needs?	106
6.7	Most important method of analysing training needs	107
6.8	Organisations monitoring the effectiveness of training	108
6.9	How organisations monitor the effectiveness of their training	108
6.10	Increased responsibility of line management in training and development	109
6.11	With whom primary responsibility lies for training and development policies	109
6.12	Examples of management development techniques regularly used	110
6.13	Organisations that have increased money spent on management training	111
6.14	Subjects in which at least a third of managers have been trained	111
6.15	Main training requirements in the next three years	112
8.1	Head of Personnel or Human Resources function on the main board of Directors or equivalent	134
8.2	HR involvement in development of corporate strategy (%)	135
8.3	Personnel/HR management strategy (%)	135
8.4	Organisations with written HR strategy translated into work programmes and deadlines (%)	136
8.5	Organisations with written HR strategy translated into work programmes and deadlines where performance of personnel department is systematically evaluated (%)	136
8.6	Devolvement and proportion of personnel functionaries	139
8.7	Areas in which at least a third of managers trained (%)	139
11.1	Typology of management styles in employee relations	185
11.2	Dimension One: strategic integration	187
11.3	Dimension Two: individualism	188
11.4	Dimension Three: collectivism	189