

Contents

Part One: Gender Perspectives	1
1 Introduction	3
1.1 Introductory reflections	3
1.2 Objectives of the study	6
1.3 Discussion of various motives for the growing interest in the subject	9
1.4 Structure and content of the book	12
2 Women in the labour market and in management positions	15
2.1 Introduction	15
2.2 Women in the labour market	15
2.3 The gendered division of labour	17
2.4 Choice of profession/trade and education	18
2.5 Female managers	19
2.6 Specific organizations	21
2.7 Summary and suggestions for explanations	22
3 The social construction of gender	25
3.1 Macro-sociological explanatory models	26
3.2 Middle range and micro-sociological explanatory models	31
3.3 Power	37
3.4 Explanatory models in the field of socialization theory	39
3.5 Discussion	44
4 Similarities and differences between female and male managers	47
4.1 Leadership style	47
4.2 Different job reactions	50
4.3 The managerial woman	53
4.4 Discussion	55
5 The way to – and from a management position	59
5.1 Discrimination in connection with assessments	59
5.2 Discrimination against women in leading positions	65
5.3 Sex stereotypes and management positions	66
5.4 The importance of the composition of the sexes for discrimination	68
5.5 The level of the individual	70

5.6	Discussion	73
6	Ideas about women as managers	77
6.1	Are women different from men and thereby less qualified than men for management?	78
6.2	Do women have the same motivation as men with respect to work?	81
6.3	What is the importance of stereotyped ideas about women?	82
6.4	Subordinates' resistance to female managers	85
6.5	Closing remarks	86
Part Two: Three case-studies		89
7	The National Board of Social Welfare	95
7.1	The history of the organization	95
7.2	The prestige and career pattern of the organization	97
7.3	The organizational atmosphere	99
7.4	'68 democracy spirit	100
7.5	A- and B-teams	101
7.6	Promotion.	102
7.7	Barriers for women?	102
7.8	Discussion	104
8	SAS	111
8.1	Introduction	111
8.2	Method	111
8.3	Description of the organization	112
8.4	Staff conditions	117
8.5	Composition of the sexes within the organization and as regards management positions	119
8.6	Recruitment for management positions	122
8.7	Female managers compared with male managers	130
8.8	Problems specific to female managers	132
8.9	Scanweb	137
8.10	Discussion	141
8.11	Summary	148
9	The Danish Ministry of Foreign Affairs.	153
9.1	Introduction	153
9.2	A picture of the organization	154
9.3	Recruitment for and career tracks within the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.	161
9.4	The job as a lifestyle	163
9.5	The gender composition within the organization – and at top level	167

Contents		IX
9.6	Recruitment for managerial positions	169
9.7	Women and career	171
9.8	Women in the minority	175
9.9	Women in managerial positions	179
9.10	Discussion	183
Part Three: Discussions and reflections		191
10	Reflections on the case-studies	193
10.1	Summary of the three case-studies	193
10.2	Barriers.	200
10.3	Differences/similarities between women and men in management	205
10.4	Social change and organizational change	208
10.5	Can we make generalizations on the basis of our results?	212
11	Gender and organization – a differentiated understanding	221
11.1	Gender bias in organizations	222
11.2	Women – alike and unlike in an organizational context	225
11.3	Gender metaphors and organizations	228
11.4	Gender and organizational symbolism	234
11.5	Some suggestions on how to understand gender discrimination	239
11.6	Some implications of a differentiated view on gender and organization	241
11.7	Concluding remarks.	245
References.		249