

Contents

|  |         |
|--|---------|
| List of figures  | page xi |
| List of tables   | xii     |
| Preface  | xv      |
|    |         |
| 1 Organized groups and the political system  | 1       |
| Understanding organized groups: The lack of consensus  | 1       |
| Moving ahead   | 4       |
| The focus of analysis: Common Cause  | 7       |
| Some caveats   | 12      |
| Structure of the analysis  | 13      |
|    |         |
| 2 A unified framework for understanding citizens' decision making: A theory of experiential search | 15      |
| Toward a unified view  | 15      |
| General analytic approaches to citizens' decision making   | 15      |
| Members' decision making   | 17      |
| A theory of experiential search  | 21      |
| Common Cause and experiential search   | 24      |
| Conclusions: Experiential search as a unified framework  | 28      |
|    |         |
| 3 Who contributes?   | 29      |
| Common Cause members: Painting a portrait  | 29      |
| Common Cause members and the national citizenry  | 30      |
| Sociodemographic differences  | 31      |
| Political attitudes   | 36      |
| Participatory activities  | 41      |
| Summary   | 42      |
| The Common Cause membership: Activists versus rank and file  | 43      |
| Sociodemographic differences  | 44      |
| Political attitudes   | 47      |
| Participatory activities  | 54      |
| Summary   | 56      |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Conclusions: Group members – external and internal comparisons                       | 56         |
| Appendix 3.1. Question wording of Common Cause and National Election Study questions | 58         |
| General political attitudes   | 58         |
| Specific political attitudes  | 59         |
| Participatory activities  | 62         |
| 4 Why do citizens join groups?  | 63  |
| Joining – the first step   | 63         |
| Studying the membership choice   | 64         |
| Why members think they joined  | 66         |
| The determinants of membership: An individual-level analysis                         | 69         |
| Measurement   | 75         |
| Estimation  | 77         |
| Results   | 78         |
| An aggregate-level replication   | 82         |
| Choosing among public interest groups  | 86         |
| Conclusions: The determinants of membership  | 93         |
| Appendix 4.1. Critique of Kau and Rubin  | 95         |
| Appendix 4.2. Formal presentation of WESML estimator                                 | 99         |
| 5 The internal politics of organizations I: Learning and retention            | 100 |
| Life in the organization   | 100        |
| Do members learn?  | 102        |
| Exploring the retention process  | 108        |
| Measurement   | 110        |
| Understanding retention   | 111        |
| A validity check   | 120        |
| Conclusions: Learning, the retention choice, and experiential search                 | 123        |
| Appendix 5.1. Testing the retention model  | 124        |
| 6 The internal politics of organizations II: Activism                         | 127 |
| Separating the activists from the rank and file                                      | 127        |
| Checkbook versus temporal activism   | 128        |
| Checkbook activism and its determinants  | 130        |
| Temporal activism: An introduction   | 134        |
| Alternative scenarios  | 136        |
| The costs and benefits of Common Cause activism                                      | 137        |
| An empirical test: Activism and Common Cause   | 139        |
| Measurement and estimation  | 140        |
| Results   | 144        |

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Activism: A validity test   | 151 |
| A final note: Activism and retention as a joint commitment decision                                   | 152 |
| Conclusions: Moving up  | 156 |
| 7 The internal politics of organizations III: Leadership behavior and the determinants of group goals | 158 |
| Moving from the "demand" to the "supply" side   | 158 |
| Democratic processes at Common Cause  | 160 |
| Members' attitudes toward representation  | 166 |
| Shifting the issue agenda   | 169 |
| The MX missile debate   | 171 |
| A strange match: Common Cause versus MX   | 173 |
| Theoretical perspectives on organizational goals  | 176 |
| Common Cause, goal formation, and the MX missile  | 180 |
| Making sense of it all: The politics of organizational goals  | 186 |
| Conclusions: Leadership behavior and goal formation   | 187 |
| 8 Does group activity make a difference? The case of the MX missile                                   | 190 |
| The policy linkage  | 190 |
| Lobbying strategy and voting behavior   | 194 |
| Setting the stage: The battle for the Peacekeeper   | 196 |
| The role of the MX's opponents  | 202 |
| Does lobbying make a difference?  | 203 |
| Measurement and estimation   | 205 |
| Results  | 209 |
| The structural determinants of lobbying   | 215 |
| Conclusions: Voting, lobbying, and public policy  | 221 |
| 9 Does group activity make a difference? The politics of campaign finance                             | 223 |
| Returning to course   | 223 |
| Campaign finance, the MX, and Common Cause  | 224 |
| Charting the divisions  | 229 |
| Events of 1985–1991   | 234 |
| The entrepreneurs: Boren and Byrd   | 235 |
| The first offensive: The push for PAC reform  | 237 |
| The second offensive: Byrd joins the fray   | 241 |
| Life after Byrd   | 244 |
| Common Cause and campaign finance reform  | 247 |
| Conclusions: Coalition formation and group influence  | 252 |
| 10 Conclusions: Citizens' preferences, internal politics, and public policy                           | 255 |

---

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Interest groups and representation                           | 255 |
| Individual choice, internal politics, and systemic influence | 256 |
| Individual choice behavior                            | 257 |
| Internal politics and goal formation                  | 259 |
| Systemic impact                                       | 260 |
| The big picture  | 262 |
| Linking citizens to policy                            | 262 |
| Viewing organizations                                 | 265 |
| Some final thoughts  | 266 |
| Notes  | 267 |
| References   | 293 |
| Index  | 303 |

Figures

|     |  |               |
|-----|--|---------------|
| 1.1 | Groups and the political system: A schematic   | page 5 |
| 1.2 | Common Cause membership over time  | 11            |
| 2.1 | Organizational membership as experiential search   | 25            |
| 3.1 | Geographic distribution of Common Cause membership(membership/voting age population) | 35            |
| 4.1 | A model of contribution behavior   | 76            |
| 5.1 | Retention predictions and organizational experience                                      | 118           |
| 6.1 | Probability of activism and organizational experience                                    | 150           |
| 8.1 | Determinants of congressional vote choice  | 197           |
| 8.2 | Lobbying and fence straddling  | 219           |
| 9.1 | Possible campaign finance reform strategies  | 235           |
| 9.2 | Support for the Boren initiative   | 240           |

Tables

|      |  |                |
|------|--|----------------|
| 3.1  | Common Cause members and the national electorate:Selected sociodemographic characteristics                                     | page 32 |
| 3.2  | Common Cause members and the national electorate:General policy preferences  | 37             |
| 3.3  | Common Cause members and the national electorate:Participatory activity  | 42             |
| 3.4  | Comparing rank and file and activists: Selectedsociodemographic characteristics  | 44             |
| 3.5  | Comparing rank and file and activists: General policypreferences   | 48             |
| 3.6  | Comparing rank and file and activists: Policy preferences onnongroup issues  | 49             |
| 3.7  | Comparing rank and file and activists: Policy preferences ongroup issues   | 52             |
| 3.8  | Comparing rank and file and activists: Participatory activity  | 55             |
| 4.1  | Members' proclaimed reasons for joining Common Cause   | 67             |
| 4.2  | Sources of initial information about Common Cause  | 72             |
| 4.3  | Determinants of group membership (WESML estimates)   | 79             |
| 4.4  | Determinants of aggregate membership (group logit estimates)   | 85             |
| 4.5  | Determinants of initial membership choice, nonprioritizedmodel (WESML estimates comparing groups to League ofWomen Voters) | 89             |
| 4.6  | Determinants of initial membership choice, prioritized model(WESML estimates comparing groups to League of WomenVoters)    | 91             |
| 4.7  | Classification of initial decisions by group (column/rowpercentages)   | 93             |
| 4.8  | Tests of Kau and Rubin model (WESML estimates)   | 97             |
| 5.1  | Organizational experience and knowledge about group  | 103            |
| 5.2a | Organizational experience and group issue opinions(percentage of Common Cause members without opinions)                        | 105            |
| 5.2b | Organizational experience and personal issue opinions(percentage of Common Cause members without opinions)                     | 106            |

---

|     |   |     |
|-----|---|-----|
| 5.3 | Determinants of retention decisions   | 112 |
| 5.4 | Cost sensitivity and income level   | 114 |
| 5.5 | Retention decisions of newcomers and veterans   | 119 |
| 5.6 | Determinants of retention: Four-group study (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)                    | 122 |
| 6.1 | Determinants of checkbook activism (logit estimates)  | 132 |
| 6.2 | How contributors became Common Cause activists  | 141 |
| 6.3 | Determinants of activism (WESML estimates)  | 143 |
| 6.4 | Probability of activism   | 146 |
| 6.5 | Determinants of activism: Four-group study (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)                     | 153 |
| 6.6 | Joint determinants of activism and retention: Four-group study (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses) | 155 |
| 7.1 | Results of issue polls on the appropriate role of Common Cause: 1987–1991   | 163 |
| 7.2 | Members' attitudes about internal politics  | 167 |
| 7.3 | Members' attitudes toward increased defense spending  | 183 |
| 8.1 | MX House votes analyzed   | 207 |
| 8.2 | Determinants of anti-MX voting (HR5167), 1984 (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)                  | 210 |
| 8.3 | Determinants of anti-MX voting (SJRES71 & HR1872), 1985 (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)        | 211 |
| 8.4 | Effects of anti-MX lobbying on vote outcomes (estimates of number of anti-MX votes for those lobbied)                 | 214 |
| 8.5 | Determinants of anti-MX lobbying (HR5167), 1984 (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)                | 216 |
| 8.6 | Determinants of anti-MX lobbying (SJRES71 & HR1872), 1985 (probit estimates with standard errors in parentheses)      | 217 |