

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
Part I Ethnographic/Empirical Readings	23
1 Reading as/like a Feminist Sara Mills	25
2 Theories of Textual Determination and Audience Agency: An empirical contribution to the debate Chris Christie	47
3 Freedom, Feeling and Dancing: Madonna's songs traverse girls' talk Barbara Bradby	67
Part II Linguistic Readings	97
4 Motherhood and the Surrogate Reader: Race, gender and interpretation Zoe Wicomb	99
5 The Woman, the Man and the Filofax: Gender positions in advertising Joanna Thornborrow	128
Part III Reception-theory/Reader-response Analyses	153
6 Pre-Raphaelite Painting and the Female Spectator: Sexual/textual positioning in Dante Gabriel Rossetti's The Beloved Lynne Pearce	155

7	Working Girl: A Woman's Film for the Eighties: Female spectators and popular film	173
	Julia Hallam
8	'The Glass of Gin': Renegade reading possibilities in the classic realist text	199
	Kay Boardman
9	Feminism and Trash: Destabilising 'the reader'	217
	Imelda Whelehan
	Conclusion	236
	Bibliography	239
	Notes on Contributors	251
	Index	253

Illustrations

- 4.1 Jan Dibbets' photograph, 1987
- 4.2 Advertisement from True Love magazine, April 1989, South Africa
- 5.1 Filofax advertisement (A), 1989
- 5.2 Filofax advertisement (B), 1989
- 6.1 Dante Gabriel Rossetti: The Beloved, 1865