

Tables

Figures

I.	Introduction	1
	1. Problem Setting	1
	2. Plan of the Study	5
II.	Theoretical Explanation of Currency Substitution in Developing Countries	7
	1. A Survey of Existing Literature	7
	2. The Transaction Cost Approach to Money Demand	14
	2.1. The Use of Domestic Currency for Transaction Purposes ..	14
	2.2. The Use of Foreign Currency for Transaction Purposes ..	16
	2.3. Transaction Costs and Money in the Utility Function	21
	2.4. Transaction Costs and Money in the Production Function ..	24
	2.5. Transaction Costs and Portfolio Choice	26
	3. A Currency Substitution Model for Developing Countries	28
	3.1. The Model	28
	3.2. Empirically Testable Hypotheses	36
III.	A Framework for Assessing Currency Substitution in Developing Countries	40
	1. The Vicious Cycle of Inflation and Demonetization	40
	2. Defining and Measuring Currency Substitution	51

IV.	The Welfare Effects of Currency Substitution	62
	1. Introduction	62
	2. Macroeconomic Considerations	64
	2.1. Positive Effects of Currency Substitution	64
	2.2. Negative Effects of Currency Substitution	67
	3. Microeconomic Considerations	72
	3.1. Productivity and Yield Effects	72
	3.2. Liquidity and Distribution Effects	74
	4. Conclusions	77
V.	Currency Substitution in Latin America	79
	1. Introduction	79
	2. The Process of Dollarization	80
	2.1. General Overview of Latin American Countries	80
	2.2. Detailed Analysis on Argentina	87
	2.2.1. Dollarization between 1970 and 1990	87
	2.2.2. Effects of the 'Plan Cavallo' on Dollarization	94
	2.3. Detailed Analysis on Uruguay	100
	2.4. Detailed Analysis on Paraguay	109
	3. The Causes of Dollarization: Regression Analysis	117
	3.1. Regression Analysis of Southern Cone Countries	117
	3.1.1. Definition of Regression Variables	117
	3.1.2. Argentina	122
	3.1.3. Uruguay	125
	3.1.4. Paraguay	128
	3.1.5. Summary	131
	3.2. Cross-section Analysis on Latin America	132
	3.2.1. Definition of Regression Variables	132
	3.2.2. Regression Results	135
	4. Survey Results from the Industrial Sector in Argentina and Uruguay	139
	4.1. The Survey Sample	139
	4.2. Dollar Currency Usage by Argentine Companies	141
	4.3. Dollar Currency Usage by Uruguayan Companies	148
	4.4. The Impact of Dollarization on Financial Management	150
	4.5. Summary of Survey Results	155

VI. Currency Substitution in Central and Eastern Europe	158
1. Introduction	158
2. Some Stylized Facts of Relevance to Currency Substitution	159
3. Theoretical Explanation of Currency Substitution in Centrally Planned Economies	174
4. Currency Substitution in Poland: A Case Study	179
4.1. The Evolution of the Polish Economy in the 1980s	179
4.2. Demonetization and Foreign Exchange Demand in Poland	182
4.3. Explanation of Currency Substitution in Poland	188
4.4. Summary and Conclusions	201
VII. Policy Recommendations for Dollarized Economies	203
1. The Policy Dilemma	203
2. The Policy Options	205
2.1. Monetary-Based Stabilization	205
2.2. Exchange-Rate-Based Stabilization	207
2.3. Deliberate Dollarization	212
3. Some Policy Guidelines	216
VIII. Summary	219
Appendix I	226
Appendix II	228
Appendix III	241
Bibliography	250

LIST OF TABLES

	Page
Table 1: Real Deposit Interest Rates in Latin America 1978-1990	50
Table 2: M1/GDP and M2/GDP in Latin American and Industrialized Countries 1970-1990	58
Table 3: Share of Foreign Currency Deposits in Broad Money: Comparison between Latin American and Industrialized Countries	61
Table 4: Overseas Foreign Currency Deposits of Residents from Developing Countries 1981-1990	81
Table 5: Evolution of the Financial Sector in Argentina between 1984-1990	89
Table 6: The Companies polled in Argentina	140
Table 7: Survey Results on Argentina	143
Table 8: Inflation in Central and Eastern Europe Compared with Industrial and Developing Countries 1971-1990	169
Table 9: Financial Deepening in Central and Eastern Europe Compared with Industrial and Developing Countries 1980-1990	171
Table 10: Macroeconomic Indicators on Poland 1978-1991	190
Table 11: Interest Rates on Zloty Deposits and Credits in the Polish Banking System 1985-1992	195
Table 12: Interest Rates on Foreign Currency Deposits in the Polish Banking System 1990-1992	196

LIST OF FIGURES

	Page
Figure 1: The Vicious Cycle of Inflation and Demonetization - A Framework for Currency Substitution	41
Figures 2,3,4: Budget Deficits and Inflation in Selected Latin American Countries	43
Figure 5: Sectoral Outline and Definition of Currency Substitution ...	53
Figures 6,7,8: Financial Deepening in Selected Latin American Countries 1980-1990	83
Figure 9: Economic Growth and Inflation in Argentina 1970-1990 ...	88
Figure 10: Demonetization in Argentina: M1/GDP and M2/GDP 1970-1990	91
Figure 11: Foreign Currency Deposits in Argentina 1985-1991	92
Figure 12: Assessed Dollarization in Argentina in 1990	94
Figure 13: Structure of Private Sector Money Demand in Argentina ..	97
Figure 14: Economic Growth and Inflation in Uruguay 1970-1990 ...	102
Figure 15: Foreign Currency Deposits in Uruguay 1973-1990	105
Figure 16: Demonetization in Uruguay: M1/GDP and M2/GDP 1973-1990	106
Figure 17: Assessed Dollarization in Uruguay in 1990	109
Figure 18: Economic Growth and Inflation in Paraguay 1970-1990 ..	110
Figure 19: M1/GDP and M2/GDP in Paraguay 1970-1990	111
Figure 20: Foreign Currency Deposits in Paraguay 1970-1990	112
Figure 21: Assessed Dollarization in Paraguay in 1990	116

Figure 22: Positive Effects of Dollarization viewed by Argentine Companies	151
Figure 23: Negative Effects of Dollarization viewed by Argentine Companies	154
Figure 24: M1/GDP in Central and Eastern Europe 1980-1990	170
Figure 25: Demonetization in Poland in the 1980s	185
Figure 26: Quarterly Evolution of Foreign Currency Deposits in Poland 1986-1991	186
Figure 27: Monthly Evolution of Foreign Currency Deposits in Poland January 1990-June 1992	187
Figure 28: Inflation and Exchange Rates in Poland 1986-1992	193
Figure 29: World Market Integration of Poland 1980-1991	199