

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword

Gérard Calot, Jenny Gierveld

Introduction

Nico van Nimwegen, Jean-Claude Chesnais, Pearl Dykstra 1

I.	Demographic trends	11
1.	Demographic trends: the case of the Netherlands
	Gijs Beets	13
1.1.	Fertility trends	13
1.2.	Family size and age at motherhood	14
1.3.	Leaving school, cohabitation, and non-marital fertility	18
1.4.	Contraception and abortion	25
1.5.	Nuptiality	28
1.6.	Fertility of immigrant women	32
1.7.	Age-sex structure of the population and mortality .	36
1.8.	Conclusion	39
	References	40
2.	Demographic trends: the case of France
	Chantal Blayo, Jean-Paul Sardon, Laurent Toulemon . . .	43
2.1.	Fertility, abortion, and contraception	43
2.1.1.	Annual natality and fertility	43
2.1.2.	Marital fertility	46
2.1.3.	Family size	47
2.1.4.	The timing of family formation	49
2.1.5.	Parity progression ratios	50
2.1.6.	Components of completed fertility by birth order	51
2.1.7.	Non-marital fertility	52
2.1.8.	Foreign women's contributions to French fertility	55

2.1.9.	Recent developments	56
2.1.10.	Resorting to abortion	58
2.1.11.	Use of contraceptives in France	63
2.2.	Nuptiality	66
2.2.1.	The number of marriages and the total female first marriage rate	66
2.2.2.	The nuptiality of birth cohorts	69
2.2.3.	Non-married couples	71
2.3.	Divorce	71
2.3.1.	The number of divorces and the total divorce rate	71
2.3.2.	Mean duration of marriages at divorce	74
2.3.3.	Divorce in the marriage cohorts	74
2.4.	Mortality	76
2.4.1.	The aging of the population	80
2.5.	Conclusion	85
	References	85
	Annex	87

3.	Demographic trends: Comparison Gijs Beets, Chantal Blayo, Jean-Paul Sardon, Laurent Toulemon	99
3.1.	Fertility, abortion, and birth control	99
3.1.1.	Fertility	99
3.1.2.	Abortion	104
3.1.3.	Birth control	104
3.1.4.	Marriages	105
3.2.	Living arrangements	106
3.3.	Divorce	111
3.4.	Population growth, mortality, and aging	112
	Annex	117

II. Spatial population issues 127

4.	Sustained low fertility and spatial population distribution in France Daniel Courgeau, Denise Pumain	129
4.1.	Departmental fertility differentials	131
4.1.1.	One hundred years of past evolution	132
4.1.2.	Recent evolution of fertility differentials	136
4.2.	Departmental net migrations and links with fertility	143
4.2.1.	Evolution of net migration rates	143

4.2.2.	Links between net migration and gross reproduction rate	144
4.3.	Urban-rural fertility differentials	145
4.3.1.	Recent evolution of fertility according to settlement size	145
4.3.2.	Evolution of fertility in the largest urban areas	148
4.3.3.	Inter-urban variations of net migration	149
4.3.4.	Gross reproduction rate, net migration and socioeconomic structure of the urban system	150
4.4.	Conclusion	152
	References	153
	Annex	155
5.	The impact of fertility change on population distribution
	Frans Willekens	161
5.1.	Introduction	161
5.2.	The theory of the reproductive value	163
5.2.1.	The reproductive value	163
5.2.2.	The spatial reproductive value	167
5.3.	The impact of fertility change on population distribution	172
5.4.	Application to the Netherlands	176
5.5.	Conclusion	189
	References	192
6.	Spatial population issues: Comparison
	Daniel Courgeau, Denise Pumain, Frans Willekens	195
	Reference	197
III.	Labour market	199
7.	Demographic trends and the labour market in the Netherlands
	Nico Keilman	201
7.1.	Introduction: problem formulation and aims	202
7.2.	Developments in size and age structure of the labour force, 1971-2030	203
7.3.	Policy options	213
7.4.	Female labour force participation	213
7.5.	The elderly in the labour market	217
7.6.	International migration	220

7.7.	Conclusion	222
	References	224
8.	Adjusting to a declining and aging labour force in France
	Didier Blanchet, Olivier Marchand	227
8.1.	The labour force and the labour market in France: recent trends	228
8.1.1.	Determinants of labour force growth since 1954	228
8.1.2.	Labour demand and unemployment	231
8.1.3.	Demographic, social, and sectoral structure of the labour force	233
8.2.	Prospects	236
8.2.1.	Projections of the labour force and demographic variants	236
8.2.2.	Further increases of female labour force participation	241
8.2.3.	Raising the retirement age	243
8.3.	Conclusion	246
	References	246
9.	Labour market: comparison
	Didier Blanchet, Nico Keilman, Olivier Marchand	249
IV.	Households, care, and social security	255
10.	Household trends, care for the elderly, and social security in France
	Jean-Louis Rallu, Joëlle Gaymu, Alain Parant	257
10.1.	Recent trends in households and families 1970-1985	257
10.1.1.	Households	257
10.1.2.	Families	260
10.1.3.	One-parent families	262
10.1.4.	Age structure	264
10.2.	Household and family projections	264
10.2.1.	Households	264
10.2.2.	Families	266
10.2.3.	Age structure	267
10.3.	Living arrangements of the elderly	269
10.4.	Social welfare in France: a 'Megasytem' with an uncertain future	278
10.5.	Social welfare spending: level, allocation, and funding	281

10.6.	The aging of the population: an unavoidable phenomenon	287
10.7.	The price of maintaining the system	290
	References	294
11.	Household trends, care for the elderly, and social security in the Netherlands Evert van Imhoff, Irene Hogen Esch, Suzanne Wolf	295
11.1.	Introduction	295
11.2.	Recent trends in household structure of the Dutch population	296
11.3.	Projections of future household composition	300
11.3.1.	LIPRO: a dynamic household projection model	300
11.3.2.	Data	302
11.3.3.	Demographic scenarios	303
11.3.4.	Projection results	303
11.4.	Implications for care	305
11.4.1.	Recent trends in household situation of the elderly population	306
11.4.2.	Projection results for the elderly population	306
11.4.3.	The impact on the demand for care	309
11.5.	Implications for social security expenditure	311
11.5.1.	Recent trends in social security expenditure	312
11.5.2.	Modelling the effect of demographic change on social security	313
11.5.3.	Implications for policy	317
11.6.	Conclusion	318
	References	319
12.	Aging and household trends in France and the Netherlands: some comparative remarks Evert van Imhoff, Joëlle Gaymu, Alain Parent, Jean-Louis Rallu	321
12.1.	Fertility, aging, and household structure	321
12.2.	Recent trends in household structure	322
12.3.	Projected household trends	324
12.4.	Household situation of the elderly population	326
12.5.	Social security	328
	Reference	329

List of figures	331
---------------------------	-----

List of tables	335
Organizing committee	341
List of participants and observers	343
List of authors	345