

Contents

Acknowledgments                      xi

PART I.     THEORY

1 Organizing the Study of Communication

Introduction	3
Dramaturgy	5
A Natural History	6
Concepts	9
Audiences	13
Contents	13

2 Organizational Communication in Context

Introduction	17
Communication in Context	17
Changes in Communication in Types of Societies	18
The Challenge of Postmodernism	19
Implications of Societal Context for Studying Organizational Communication	30
Conclusions	32

3 Paradigms in Communication Research

Introduction	35
Paradigms in Communication Research	36
Functionalist Views of Organization and Organizational Communication	40

A Theoretical Framework for Organizational Analysis: Loose Coupling and Discourse Analysis	48
Conclusions	54

PART II. FIELD STUDIES

4 Examples

Introduction	59
The Basis for Selecting Studies of Organizational Meanings	59
Discussion of Research Modalities: Selected Studies	62
Conclusions	86

5 Internal Communication I: Two Ethnographic Studies of Communication

Introduction	89
A Research Agenda	90
The Cases: The Nuclear Installations Inspectorate and the Police	92
Comparative Analysis	103
Conclusions	105

6 Internal Communication II: Paradox, Routines, and Resolutions

Introduction	107
Message Analysis	107
Paradox and Resolutions	115
Resolutions and Organizational Culture	121
Organizations and Information	131
Conclusions	133

7 External Communication I: Crisis, Routine, and Program in American Policing

Introduction	135
American Policing and its Dilemmas	136
The Drama of Control	141

Types of External Police Communication: Crisis	146
Strategic External Communication: Community Policing	153
Assumptions about the Problem: Four Facets	156
Organizational Contexts and Rhetorical Strategies	158
Conclusions	163

8 External Communication II: Safety Discourse

Introduction	165
Focus: Discourse	165
Communicating Risks through Organizational Discourse	167
Nuclear Discourse	171
The Natural History of Licensing as a Metaphor for Safety	178
Conclusions	179

PART III. INFERENCES AND DIRECTIONS

9 Lessons for the Field

Introduction	183
A Paradigm for Field Research	183
Field Notes	191
Writing and Writing Up	192
Conclusions	198

10 Aspects of Postmodern Ethnography of Communication

Introduction	199
Postmodernism	200
Foci of Ethnography	204
Doing Postmodernism Ethnography	206
Conclusions	217

Notes	219
-------	-----

References	227
------------	-----

Index	245
-------	-----