

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	vii
Contributors	viii
Introduction	1

Part I: Historical and Theoretical Background

---

1: The Emergence of small scale media by Ed Hollander	7
2: Community media and community communication by Ed Hollander and James Stappers	16
3: Community television as a tool of local culture by Knut Lindby	27

Part II: European Landscape

---

4: Denmark: Breaking 60 years of broadcasting monopoly by Ole Prehn, Erik Nordahl Svensen and Vibeke Peterson	45
5: Sweden: Neighbourhood radio by Lowe Hedman	62
6: Norway: Deregulation and community TV by Birger Nymo	78
7: The Netherlands: Emergence of a new medium by James Stappers, Frank Olderaan and Pieter de Wit	90
8: Belgium: So many ways to run a railroad by Jan Drijvers	104
9: Germany: From pilot projects to commercial local radio by Peter Widlok and Otfried Jarren	123
10: Switzerland: Attractive and successful, but not very local by Heinz Bonfadelli and Michael Schanne	137
11: Britain: Community broadcasting revisited by Peggy Gray and Peter Lewis	156

12: France: Broadcasting in turmoil by Jean-Paul Lafrance and Jean Paul Simon	170
13: Spain, Catalonia: Media and democratic participation in local communication by Miquel de Moragas Spà and Maria Corominas	186
14: Yugoslavia until 1990: Liberalization, integration and local radio by Slavko Spichal	198

Part III: Special Themes

---

15: Women on the air: Community radio as a tool for feminist messages by Birgitte Jallo	215
16: Experimenting with minority television in Amsterdam by Ineke Gooskens	225
17: Legal and policy aspects of community broadcasting by Nico van Eijk	235
18: From small scale utopianism to large scale pragmatism by Ole Prehn	247
Indexes by Name and Subject	269