

Notes on the contributors	vii
List of figures	x
Introduction	1
Part I: NURSING PRACTICE AND KNOWLEDGE	7
1 The shift from the closed to the open body – ramifications for nursing testimony Joan Liaschenko	9
2 Traditions and practice – nursing theory and political philosophy Keith Cash	31
3 Change and nursing Trevor Hussey	47
PART II: CONCEPTUAL FOUNDATIONS	65
4 Holism in nursing Simon Woods	67
5 Positivism as a method in nursing research Steven Edwards	89
6 Towards a credible theory of mind for nursing Edward Lepper	107
PART III: THE NURSE CURRICULUM	127
7 Heidegger and the nurse curriculum Stephen Horrocks	129
8 The unexamined life is not worth living Janet Holt	147
PART IV: THE SELF IN NURSING	159
9 The self Paul Dawson	161
10 The self and compulsory treatment Philip Ross	181
Index	200