

Contents

Figures and diagrams	vii
Contributors	viii
Preface	xi
1 Rethinking Social Research: Research in an Unequal World Carole Truman and Beth Humphries	1
2 Feminist Challenges to Traditional Research: Have They Gone Far Enough? Carole Truman	21
3 Race and ethnicity in social work: Some Issues for Anti-Discriminatory Research Ravinder Barn	37
4 Exploring Ways of Giving a Voice to People with Learning Disabilities Kathleen Pitcairn	59
5 Lost in a 'Straight' Reality: Lesbians and Gay Men in Social Research Lynn Keenaghan	82

6	Critical Life Histories: Key Anti-Oppressive Research Methods and Processes Derek Clifford	102
7	Developing a Feminist Participative Research Framework: Evaluating the Process Marion Martin	123
8	Doing Service Based Research: Some Lessons from the All-Wales Strategy Mary Scally and Stephen Beyer	146
9	Anti-Discriminatory Practitioner Social Work Research: Some Basic Problems and Possible Remedies Bob Broad	164
10	Empowerment and Social Research: Elements for an Analytic Framework Beth Humphries	185
	Index

Figures and diagrams

Figure 1	Ethnic origins of children in care	48
Figure 2	Proportion of children by sex (%)	50
Table 1	Matrix used as the basis of the schedule design	70
Diagram 1	A framework for anti-discriminatory research: Critical life histories.	115
Diagram 2	A framework for anti-discriminatory research: Critical life histories - a 2 parent, 1 child family	116
Figure I	'Change' and 'no change' anti-discriminatory cycles in practitioner research and practice	168
Figure II	A suggested anti-discriminatory framework for conducting practitioner research in comparison with social work practice	171