

Contents

List of tables	v ii
Foreword	ix
Preface	xi
List of abbreviations	xiv
Introduction	1
I Overview of the theoretical and empirical studies	5
Explaining international inter-firm cooperation	5
Overview of the empirical study	22
Summary	31
Notes	33
2 Review of literature	36
MNE theory	36
Organizational theory	58
Strategic management	77
Summary	100
Notes	103
3 Description of the empirical study	107
Overview of the empirical methodology	109
Description of the empirical study	116

The independent variables	122
The dependent variables	138
Hypothesized relationships between variables	144
Summary	145
Notes	146
4 Results of the empirical study	149
Comparing the activities of US MNEs in 1966 and 1989	150
Correlation analysis	154
Regression analysis	165
Developed and developing country analysis	176
Summary of major findings	180
Notes	184
5 Conclusions	187
Discussion of the empirical study	189
Some final thoughts	202
Bibliography	205

List of tables

Table 1.1	Hypothesized relationships between the study's independent and dependent variables	29
Table 3.1	The 52 subject countries	118
Table 3.2	Values for the economic variables	128-9
Table 3.3	Values for the social and political variables	132-3
Table 3.4	Values for REST	138-9
Table 3.5	Values for the dependent variables	142-3
Table 4.1	Characteristics of US foreign affiliates in 1966 & 1989	151
Table 4.2	Descriptive statistics	155
Table 4.3	Correlation matrix	157
Table 4.4	Direction of hypothesized and empirical relationships between IVs and DVs	161
Table 4.5	Step-wise regression of %INTFIRM	168
Table 4.6	Regression model for %INTFIRM	168
Table 4.7	Step-wise regression of %AFSALES	170

Table 4.8	Regression model for %AFSALES	170
Table 4.9	Step-wise regression of %MOFA	172
Table 4.10	Regression model for %MOFA	172
Table 4.11	Step-wise regression of %WORK	173
Table 4.12	Regression model for %WORK	173
Table 4.13	Regressions for developed and developing countries	177