

contents

---

List of figures and tables	page ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xvii
Part I Exordium	1
1 A positivist youth	3
2 Kicking the dead horse	13
Part II Narration	25
3 Economics in the human conversation	27
4 The rhetoric of this economics	38
Part III Division	53
5 The Science word in economics	55
6 Three ways of reading economics to criticize itself	71
7 Popper and Lakatos: thin ways of reading economics	85
8 Thick readings: ethics, economics, sociology, and rhetoric	94

Part IV Proof	109
9 The rise of a scientific style	111
10 The rhetoric of mathematical formalism: existence theorems	127
11 General equilibrium and the rhetorical history of formalism	146
12 Blackboard Marxism	155
13 Formalists as poets and politicians	164
 Part V Refutation	 179
14 The very idea of epistemology	181
15 The tu quoque argument and the claims of rationalism	199
16 Armchair philosophy of economics	215
17 Philosophy of science without epistemology: the Popperians	236
18 Reactionary modernism: the Rosenberg	247
19 Methodologists of economics, big M and small	265
20 Getting "rhetoric": Mark Blaug and the Eleatic Stranger	280
21 Anti-post-pre-metamodernism: the Coats/McPherson/Friedman	297
22 Splenetic rationalism, Austrian style	313
23 The economists of ideology: Heilbroner, Rossetti, and Mirowski	324
24 Rhetoric as morally radical	340
 Part VI Peroration	 365
25 The economy as a conversation	367
26 The consequences of rhetoric	379
 List of works cited	 397
Index	435

figures and tables

---

Figure

- |   |                              |                 |
|---|------------------------------|-----------------|
| 1 | The A-Prime, C-Prime theorem | page 139 |
|---|------------------------------|-----------------|

Tables

- |   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
| 1 | The rhetorical tetrad: the four devices                    | 62  |
| 2 | Persuasion is a quarter of employment                      | 78  |
| 3 | A Barnes table: the hermeneutics of the rhetorical program | 286 |